Volume 10

When people ask us where we live and we tell them, they invariably ask "Bedford, where?" After a long sigh, we're quick to inform them that our picturesque town is in between historic Concord and Lexington; Bedford is just a passing-through town. Bedford High School, however, is filled with the energy of 575 enthusiastic students. Not only are there students who have lived here all their lives and provide stability for the school, but there are also students from the nearby Air Force Base who have experienced the different flavors of the country, from Alaska to Texas. When we all come together, we create a balance which benefits us all.

CATCHING THEIR BREATH. After sports practice Sarah Rosenberg and Christina Gricci relax and chat while waiting for the late bus.

IN BETWEEN CLASSES. Tony Johnson and Marcel Biddle do not mind being late to class if it means they can get into the yearbook.

HANGING OUT. John Monte, Julie Piantedosi, and Michael Anderson value the time they can spend together.

STORY IN THE MAKING. This history class takes a break from their study of Antietam.

BE ON ONE. James Davis and John Woolard prepare to shoot some hoops in the school gym.

Choosing a College

Okay, you have managed to survive three years of high school homework. It has been accumulating each year, and now that you are a Senior, you are ready to take it easy. You are not going to have to work hard this year, right?

Wrong. There is one final torture left before you graduate from high school: submitting college applications. 12th grade is the dreaded year. You now have roughly four months to choose the perfect school, write the perfect application, and convince the admissions officer that you are the perfect candidate. (Right!)

When there are over 3000 colleges and universities, how do you narrow down your list to five or six choices? First, you rush to the bookstore and buy the latest edition of The Insider's Guide to the Colleges and every weekend you tour a different college campus. Then you listen to all of the unsolicited advice from family and friends. Finally, you give up, cross your fingers, and choose several names of colleges from a hat. Now it is time to send for the applications.

Some people are finished with their applications well ahead of time. Why does it seem that YOU have to stay up late December 31st in order to finish them? The college essays seem to require the greatest amount of time. You're happy to see that three of the college essays ask the same question. You lucked out!

Now comes the most painstaking part of the whole process - waiting for replies. This gives you a chance to know your mailman on a first name basis. In the end, you will probably be able to attend the college of your choice.

Coming of Age

APPLY HERE. Students who participate in the Student Search Service when they take the PSAT receive pounds of mail from colleges and universities throughout the country. With the college-age population at an all-time low, colleges invest in colorful brochures like these to attract the ablest students.

STUDENT LIFE

TOO MUCH EXCITEMENT FOR ONE DAY. This driver's ed class learns how to stay awake at the wheel.

SENIORITY HAS ITS PRIVILEGES. The Class of 93 gets first dibs on parking spots.

CLEAR THE WAY FOR STUDENT DRIVERS. Motorists on Rte. 128 tend to avoid the Arlex car at all costs.

Life Changes When You Have A License To Drive.

Putting the key into the ignition of a car for the first time thrills most high school students. Learning how to drive is a rite of passage for many. When the yearbook staff asked Bedford High School students why getting their license was so important, the overwhelming response was: FREEDOM. Unfortunately, people are not born knowing how to drive a car. Aaron Rashba lamented, "I have been in the parking lot six times, and my dad still won't let me drive on the road - that's how bad I am."

So people like Aaron enroll in drivers' education classes.

For a mere $215, Arlex Auto School can teach you everything you always wanted to know about driving but were afraid to ask. The instructors go through the archives and find filmstrips from the 1950s to show during class. The teachers also conduct hour-long lectures on the finer points of driving (snore.)

Once you celebrate your sixteenth birthday, you take a test that asks what the shape of a stop sign is and other perplexing questions, so that you can receive your learner's permit. Now you have the privilege of completing twelve hours of driving and observation with one of the friendly Arlex instructors who don't hesitate to slam on the passenger side brake if you make one false move. Alex Brill almost gave his instructor a heart attack when he was merging onto I28. "I looked over my shoulder a little too long. The road curved, and I kept going straight. The next thing I knew, there was the guard rail."

After you complete drivers' ed, you are ready to get your license, but that means going to the Registry of Motor Vehicles and taking the road test. However, Massachusetts seems to be fairly lenient about giving out driver's licenses. "I took the first corner a little too fast, and the examiner called me Parnelli for the rest of the test. I still got my license," said Andrea Bowlby.

Once you receive your license, you no longer have to worry about taking the bus to school or bumming rides off anyone. Unfortunately, along with a driver's license comes responsibility.

TEST DRIVE. Megan Albani hesitates before getting behind the wheel of the Arlex car because she knows she will have to work on her parallel parking. Fortunately, the instructor has an emergency brake.

Taking Care of Business

You are sputtering along 128 in your '76 jalopy when the engine overheats. You pull over into the breakdown lane, pop the hood, and wait for the car to cool down. Your thoughts drift and you begin to dream about the red BMW convertible that just sped past. You imagine yourself driving that car to Bedford High School each morning and then pushing your way through a flock of admirers and friends.

Sure, you think to yourself, a BMW costs a lot of dough, but you can afford it if you save a little money. Invest it - put your allowance to work for you. But then you reach into your pockets and pull out a crumpled dollar, an eraser, and some lint. You realize you'll have to get a job if you want to make a downpayment on your dream car.

You pore over the want ads in the newspaper and begin filling out applications. The recession makes it difficult for you to find a part-time job, and you're tired of hearing companies say, "We're looking for someone with a little more experience." The only work you can find involves flipping burgers or stuffing envelopes. But you're looking for more of a challenge - something that will keep you on your toes, so you decide to go into business for yourself.

Your friend Lisa Paschkewitz recommends child care, so she relates a recent adventure in babysitting. "I was watching a boy and a girl, and they were fighting over a headband, so I tried to take it away from the boy and return it to his sister. When that failed, I dragged him upstairs and sent him to his room. He wouldn't stay in there, so I had to hold the door closed. After a few minutes, the boy started unscrewing the door hinges."

On second thought, maybe babysitting is a little too exciting. What about raking leaves? A person couldn't ask for a better job. It's an opportunity to commune with nature - and get paid for it. The next day in school, you ask Aaron Rashba whether or not he enjoyed his job raking leaves. Without hesitations, he replies, "Raking leaves was definitely my worst job. I had to rake leaves for this old lady, and she had such a big yard that I raked all weekend, and she only paid me twenty dollars."

Well, maybe working wasn't one of your best ideas. After all, you'll be working for the rest of your life. Your run-down jalopy looks better and better.

Beyond School Walls

Bedford High School students don't waste time.

There are many talented students at Bedford High School who participate in after school activities. But there are also those who excel in things outside of school. Many times these students go unnoticed. Here is a spotlight on a few students who are dedicated to their activity. Michael Esposito started studying the piano at a very young age. He practiced many hours a day and through determination and hard work became an excellent pianist. Last summer, Mike had the opportunity to perform at Tanglewood. Mike recently won a competition and had the privilege to play with the Lowell Philharmonic Orchestra. Karen Freeman started playing the violin when she was seven years old. Three years later, she auditioned for an orchestra at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston and was accepted in the youngest orchestra. Later, Karen auditioned and was accepted to play in the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra where she played for two years. During this time, Karen took up the viola. The next year she auditioned for the senior orchestra on both instruments. For the past two years, Karen has played the viola in GBSYO and had the exciting experience of going on tour to Europe.

Karen also adds spark to the Bedford High School orchestra and chamber music as the assistant principal violinist. Another talented student at Bedford High is sophomore Katie Carpenter. She has taken ballet for eight years and has performed with a variety of companies. While studying at a church in Lexington, she found various pamphlets advertising auditions for different Nutcracker productions. Katie performed with the Pittsburgh Ballet Theater in 1986 and also with the Dance Prism, a group of dancers who travel to different towns. Katie also performed in AIM (Adventures in Music) for four years where she both danced and acted. Perhaps Katie's biggest accomplishment was being a part of the Boston Ballet during the 7th and 8th grades. She played a reindeer in the Boston Ballet production of the Nutcracker. Another talented dancer at Bedford High is freshman Sally Atkinson. She began taking lessons when she was four and performed in her first concert at the age of five. Sally has studied ballet, jazz, and tap dance for the past eleven years. She has performed in countless shows with many dance groups. Sally now studies at the Dance Inn in Lexington and she is in the Legacy Dance Company which performs concerts throughout the year. A very active member of the community, David Gersh, started the recycling program at Bedford High School during his freshman and sophomore years. He began by contacting the local recycling company and he worked with the school to get permission to run the program. He began collecting paper and distributing bins. He had to organize people to collect recycled goods and to teach people about recycling. Dave feels strongly that recycling is important and it is a very thing to do. We should try to keep paper out of landfills and reuse goods as much as possible. Dave is still recycling now and hopes to find someone as enthusiastic as he to be his successor. If you are not recycling now, you should start because as Dave says, "If we do not do something now, we will not have a better world for ourselves and our children." Mike, Karen, Katie, Sally, and Dave are just a sampling of the students at Bedford High School who concentrate on activities outside school. All of these students should be recognized and congratulated for their determination and dedication.

TICKLING THE IVORIES. Mike Esposito started young and had to practice every day to become the great pianist he is.

A SHIRLEY TEMPLE LOOKALIKE. At six years of age, Sally Atkinson showed great promise as a tap dancer.

REAL MEN RECYCLE. Dave Gersh carries a bin of recycled goods to the recycling center. Dave developed the recycling program in Bedford two years ago.

ONHERTOES. Katie Carpenter poses for a picture before the AIM concert in 1989.

City Nights

What do the song "We Got Tonight," by Bob Seager and the date May 16 have in common? If you guessed the Junior Prom of '92 you are right! The cafeteria was transformed into a magical 'city of lights' thanks to much hard work put in by Mr. Sabourin, the faculty advisor, and the student committee: Mark McInnis, Rachel Berkowitz, Dave Boffa, Kristen Colliton, and Katy Doherty.

By no means were the decorations trivial. The effect of a lighted bridge and a myriad of balloons and steamers accentuated the theme. Even though there was a lot of hard work involved, the set-up was described as "the best part of the whole project. There really was a lot of teamwork."

Over one hundred people attended. The royal court consisted of John Mara and Rachel Berkowitz as king and queen, Krystin Carpenter, Katy Doherty, Jennifer Hansen, Jennifer Hanson, Geoff Chase, Teri Ciccone, David Venuti, and Vincent Welch.

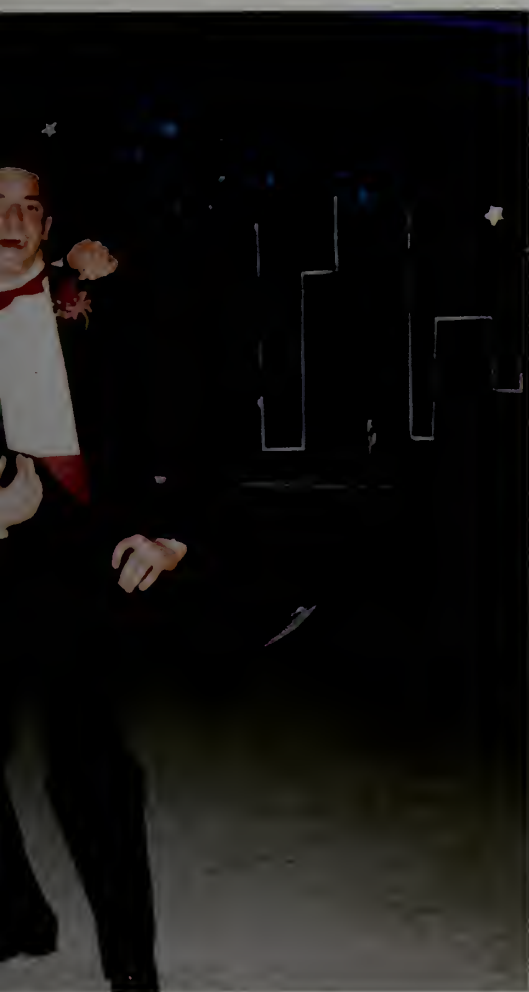

LIVING IT UP. Chip Mofield, Colin Ross, Matt Lentine, and Adam Udell are having too much fun in their penguin suits.

STRIKE A POSE! Krystin Carpenter, Mary Mix, Jen Blackstone, Stephanie Dubitsky, Jane Chui, Kim Sands, Meg Boschetto, Caitlin Hurley, and Laurie Sheflin appear to be having a marvelous time.

WHO HAS THE SPIFFIEST CUMBERBUN AND TIE? It's a tough decision, but Todd Anderson and Dave Boffa take the cake.

WATCH WHERE YOU STEP. Caroline, Katy, and Mandy slide gracefully across the dance floor without shoes. Besides, who needs blisters?

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY. Terri Franks is attempting to start a new dance fad, but it looks like she's having a blast.

WAITING FOR THEIR DATES. Mike Boutin, Colin Ross, John Ginn, Mr. Sabourin, and Adam Udell seem to be having fun even before the girls arrive.

Studying??

The start of a new school year means juggling home work, a job, and a social life. However, students really have to buckle down and hit the books in order to maintain their grades and digest all of the information taught in class. Many busy people slave over the books into the wee hours of the morning and just pray that everything comes together.

Incredible! You walk into your favorite class of the day and half of the students are absent! Contrary to the belief that people skip school just because they are lazy, for each empty seat there are reasons and rationalizations for each absent person.

Students at BHS contrive a multitude of reasons why they fail to attend class. While some are valid, a death in the family, a serious illness, etc..., others are just plain amusing.

Top 10 Reasons to Skip School

MAY I HELP YOU? Candy-striper Rita Patino answers the telephone at Emerson Hospital where she volunteers once a week. "The reason I commit 5 hours a week to Emerson is because it's rewarding and I've met a lot of good friends there from different areas. We share a common bond and that's the desire to help people."

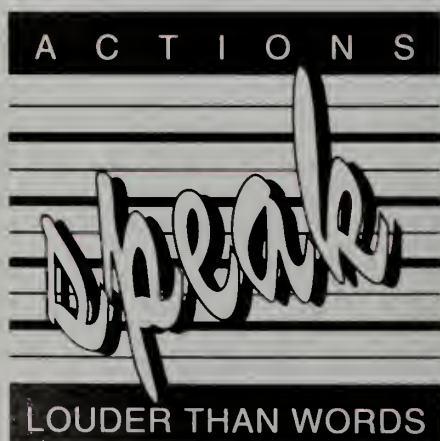

A Helping Hand

Community Service

There are two kinds of people; those who perform community service and those who do nothing but sit at home and read their yearbooks. Okay, so maybe there are more than two kinds of people, but the point is that community service is something good to do both for yourself and for the community you are helping.

At Bedford High School there are many students who perform community service. Whether serving food at a soup kitchen or volunteering at a local hospital, BHS students get involved.

"I volunteer at a homeless shelter called the Lazarus House because I like helping people," says Jeanette Hagon, a BHS Junior. Obviously BHS students feel the same way.

"I volunteered at the V.A. because I had to do it for confirmation - you know, to fulfill a certain number of hours of community service."

Homecoming Weekend

The longstanding tradition at Bedford High School of Homecoming was celebrated on a cool Friday night last November during halftime of the Bedford-Westford game. A large crowd was on hand and despite a failure of the PA system, the crowd was enthusiastic and in great anticipation for the announcement of the 1993 Homecoming king and queen. The court had been announced at the pep rally earlier that day and they all congregated on the track eagerly awaiting the results. First to be announced were the runner-ups for homecoming queen: Rachel Berkowitz, Kristen Colliton, Katy Doherty, and Terri Franks. Then the ecstatic queen, Caroline Busch, was announced. All female members of the court were given flowers and hugs and all showed off their gorgeous smiles to demonstrate their ecstatic feelings.

This announcement was followed by the men: Alex Brill, Geoff Chase, Mark McInnis and Dave Venuti. The king, Dave Boffa, was jubilant after receiving his award and was supported by his fellow court members with cheers and high-fives. All ten students celebrated their appointments to the court later that evening after the game at the annual homecoming dance.

A THREE TRUMPET CONCERT! Laurie Sheflin, Jennifer St. Sauveur, and Brian Fehlau played music of the medieval period much to the delight of the audience.

Madrigal Dinner

The annual Madrigal Dinner was nothing short of spectacular. Good food, entertaining performances by various minstrels, and creative decorations transported spectators to the Medieval times. Trumpets heralded the arrival of the guests who were amused by jugglers and the entire cast dressed in complete costume. After the procession, the cast produced several short plays. Laurie Sheflin and Jane Atkinson wrote each skit.

One skit describes the trials and tribulations of a royal family, and had the potential for a good soap opera. Young Sir Edward (Adam Chioccia) proposes to Princess Anne (Jane Atkinson), but the king (Alex Brill) protests and separates the two lovers. The queen has an affair with George (Brian Fehlau), but George breaks off the romance. In the next scene, the king is found dead, and the Royal Court Sleuth (Mike Esposito) suspects foul play. The detective is determined to track down the killer, but stumped, he asks the audience for help. The story takes on an odd twist when the king reappears and tells the baffled court that he was merely pretending to be dead in order to discover the others' true feelings toward him. After apologies, the entire court shares a group hug.

The cast processed out to a round of applause. Congratulation on another fine Madrigal Dinner. Wassail!

CAN YOU SING FOR YOUR SUPPER?

Blood - Sweat and Tears

Any Bedford athlete would say that we do not have the best teams in the Dual County League, but they would definitely agree that we are close. Dedication and loyalty are the secrets to our success. Many long and hard practices have produced victories over other schools. Any losses are taken in stride, and there usually is no fuss.

Some of the Bedford athletic teams have produced league all-stars, state finalists, and even a couple of most valuable players. The recruiters have looked at our capable athletes and tried to persuade them to attend certain colleges. That just goes to show how much effort the athletes at Bedford invest in sports. Athletes achieve personal satisfaction knowing that they put their all into practices and games. One student commented, "We are like a steak and cheese hoagie — we're good, real good."

The wonderful sports program at Bedford High School coupled with the amount of involvement contributes to the unity and morale of the school. Athletes meet a variety of people, and friendships are cemented. The athletic program makes it all happen.

Putting It All Together

The 1992 Buccaneer Football Team entered the season with high expectations. This year's squad was an extremely tight unit resulting in a 7-3 record, one of the best finishes in recent years. The Bucs' opponents were often bigger, stronger, faster, and more numerous, but the Bedford team proved time and time out that it's the size of a player's heart that counts. Vin Welch commented that the entire team was psyched for the game against Acton. "It was our first chance for a big win, and they said they were going to kill us. The game was very physical, but we won, and that really got the season rolling." The year featured a number of second-half comebacks and saw the Bucs' defense hold their opponents scoreless for eleven straight quarters.

The team was headed by quad-captains Teri Ciccone, John Ginn, Scott Kleepkamp, and Colin Ross. All four were awarded Dual County League honors, and Ross was selected as the league's most valuable player. The four captains led an equally talented squad composed of many seniors.

The varsity football team discovered the secret to success.

Keoni Monte ran for many hard fought first downs. Pat Lewis, a mainstay in the Bedford defense, will always be remembered for his over-time fumble against Westford. Dave Lord led the team in receiving and was a constant big play threat.

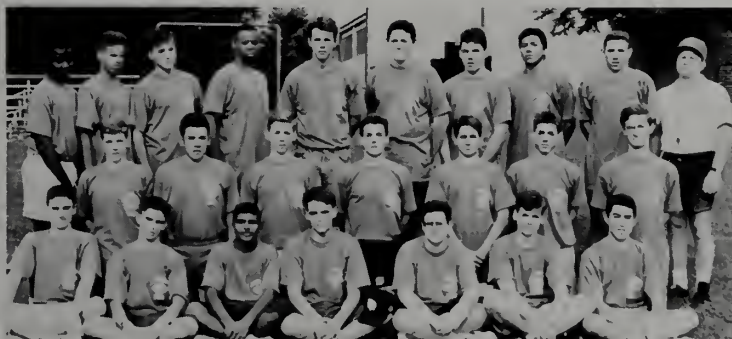

Vin Welch was Mr. Consistency, both in his performance and the enthusiasm he displayed throughout the season. Rich Atkinson and Viet Le led the unrelenting Buc Special Teams. Jason Setters anchored the skilled front four of the Bedford defensive line, and Matt Wilson and Chip Mofield formed the left side of an offensive line which blasted its opponents in the trenches all season long.

Many underclassmen also contributed to Bedford's success. Chris Midgett and Chris Farmer will undoubtedly be star players next year. Now, with the 1993 off-season already in progress, the seniors of the '92 squad wish the best of luck to the members of the '93 squad and hope that next year's team can pick up where the team left off on Thanksgiving Day, trouncing Concord-Carlisle.

SOMETHING TO CELEBRATE. Sara Borshay and Sara Rosenberg run off the field after a game. The matches always end on an emotional high whether the Bucs triumph over the opposition or suffer a defeat.

Victories Eluded The Field Hockey Team This Year, But The Record Did Not Affect Their Spirit!

Alright, The Bedford High Varsity Field Hockey Team wasn't exactly the best. However, they tried their hardest and started out with a bang. They won their first game of the season 2-1 against Newton South. Then the Lady Bucs lost their touch and the next 2 matches. 1992's quad-captains Becca Mix, Kristen Colliton, Shay Duris, and Terri Franks encouraged the team to keep up the spirit despite the losses. The team ended the season with 1 win, 12 losses, and 5 ties, however all of the games were close.

The seven graduating seniors were some of the most spirited members BHS has encountered. Beginning with forwards Kristen Colliton, Terri Franks, and Alexis MacLeod. Backing them up were halfbacks Shay Duris, Michelle Pavlas, and fullback Stephanie Dubitsky. Behind all of them was goalie Becca Mix.

The Buccaneers were proud to hear that goalie Becca Mix, halfback Shay Duris, and fullback Kerri Mead made the first Dual County League All Star team. Making the DCL second team were forwards Kristen Colliton and Terri Franks.

As the fall sports season came to a close, the seven graduating seniors were sad to say good-bye to a team that meant so much to them for the past four years. The seniors wish lots of luck to next year's team.

Golf & Co-ed X-C

You don't have to enjoy pain to enjoy cross-country, but it probably helps. Though some will argue otherwise, any cross-country team runner will tell you that his or her team is one of the hardest working at Bedford High. The practices are short but intense: we just run.

1992 saw another great improvement in the team. With a top seven composed of many sophomores, this team's future looks very bright. The number one runner on the team, Steve "God" Robinson will still be competing along with fellow sophomore squad members Naveen Wadhera, Gilbert Tsang, and Matt Dwyer. Other returning members were Mike Esposito and Aaron Rashba. Mike again suffered a tough injury half-way through the season but returned in time to enter the last few meets. Aaron was a strong competitor. Caitlin Hurley abandoned soccer to run on the cross-country team. Cait was unable to compete with the girls, so she ran with the boys and usually finished in the top three for Bedford. Robinson and Tony Richards both made it to the state meet this season.

The 1992 season was a tough one for Bedford, and the record certainly does paint the whole picture. Four of the meets which the team lost were lost by a narrow margin. At any rate, the other Dual County League teams will be carefully eyeing Bedford in the next year.

The entire team would like to thank Coach Barry Dynet. Working with him has been a privilege. Under his guidance, practices were demanding yet fun. Team members formed close friendships, and Barry was a friend as well as a coach.

The autumn of 1992 was by far Bedford High School's best golf season in recent history. The team ended the season with nine wins, three ties, and only two losses. The team qualified for state championships where they missed the final cut by a few strokes.

The team was led by three individuals who referred to themselves as "The Bash Brothers" — otherwise known as Bryan Albonesi, Dave Boffa, and Dave Venuti. These three carried the team to the state tournament with occasional wins by Mark McInnis, Matt McGarry, Mike McGarry, and Josh Reynolds. However, the Bash Brothers were the emotional leaders of the team, oftentimes giving speeches to the players before every match. "We did this to give the team the mental edge," said Albonesi, "and Venuti often talked trash to the other team, but they always backed it up."

Boffa interjected, "Talking trash was my way of getting our opponent out of the match mentally. You don't know how many players I went against that were so much better than me playing the game, but they didn't have the mental edge over me, and that's how I made up the difference."

In any event, the Bash Brothers and the 1992 golf team will never be forgotten.

GIRLS SOCCER

Both the Girl's Varsity and Junior Varsity soccer teams had rough seasons this year. The scoreboard, however, did not dampen the girls' spirits. Before and during games, spectators could hear the girls inspiring motto, "We Believe!," demonstrating the team's unity.

The enthusiasm and youth of the new coach, Kristen Dougherty, helped the team through many disappointing games. The four remaining seniors, captains, Darrell Russell, Meg Boschetto, Kim Sands, and Stephanie Cann, led the team and showed leadership. The juniors made up a strong force, in skill and number. Linda Jones led the offensive with her quick speed and impressive moves. Cyndi Hunt, Kristen MacDonald, and Wendy Castellana were all very strong on the offensive line. Debbie Downs and Siri Hanson demonstrated versatility; and each played both offensive and defensive positions. Carolyn Fanelli and Marika Volicer used their strength in helping to defend the goal, which was guarded by Mary DeMoss. Although it was her first year playing on the varsity team, DeMoss proved to be a strong asset, using amazing skills to save many goals. Unfortunately, during the season, two excellent players, juniors Beth Mara and Kim Raffa, were both severely injured. Returning sophomores, Kim Duda and Tara Slavin, once again demonstrated their abilities on the field. Katie Esposito, in her first year at B.H.S., showed great promise.

Although the girls did not experience many wins, their efforts exemplified the true spirit of dedicated athletes. They devoted a lot of time and hard work, and their hearts were always in the game. Gradually, the girls became a team and learned to play together.

*"Let's go to war.
Take the meat!"*

Captains John Mara and Adam Udell

These words have characterized the attitude of Bedford High Soccer for years, and it is no coincidence that they are spoken by this year's two senior captains. Intense leaders on the field, John Mara and Adam Udell provided the great leadership the young Bucker team needed. Storming the opposition's goal and playing punishing defense respectively, Mara and Udell were voted league all-stars. They were joined by junior captain

Calvin Wilder, who solidly manned the defense with Udell. Returning just five seniors from last year and gaining as many freshmen, some would have chalked this fall up as a rebuilding year. Not Coach Wilson. Never conceding anything, he led the team through a very competitive Dual County League schedule.

The Bucs captured their first victory against Wayland when senior Dan Hogland scored the contest's only goal in his first game at Bedford. As the season progressed, seniors Jason Campoli and "Vulcan" Miani stepped up their games and were joined by juniors Rob Hannon, Ben Dick, and John Barrows. Sophomore Matt Giusti showed great enthusiasm, and "Ozzy" Clark not only ran through every ball, but also every player on the opposing team.

At home against Boston Latin, Mara exploded for four goals in the Bedford victory. The Bucs' win over Wayland was highlighted by Wilder's eighteen yard header into the net. Another big game came against league-leading Lincoln Sudbury in which Rob Hannon netted Mara's rebound and tied the score with only seconds left.

Undoubtedly, though, the best game for the Bucs came under the lights against Westford Academy, eventual Division II state champion and newcomer to the league making its first trip to Bedford. Westford had much better skills, but Bedford's muscle and intensity made up the difference. Trailing 1-0 in the second half, the Bucs started to hit hard. Mara knotted the score with a solo effort. Westford scored again late in the game, and the Bucs simply ran out of time before they could answer. This bruising contest sent Westford limping and not wanting to see Bedford for another year. Coach Wilson characterized the game when he said, "Welcome to the DCL (Dual County League)" Westford learned its lesson well; for after winning the state championship they declared Bedford their toughest competition all year.

Cheerleading

The 1992 - 1993 Cheerleading season was filled with many ups and downs. Tryouts were in May of last year and there was a lot of talent. Twenty-four girls made it, and by the end of the season we were down to eighteen. During the summer we had practices every other day and we also did a fund-raiser for new uniforms.

We all got to know each other really well at camp. We won an award for the most unified squad. Football season started, and it was slow at first, but it picked up when our competition season started in October. Practices were held from 5 and 7 PM after school. Our first competition was in Woburn, and we managed to place seventh. Our next competition was the Massachusetts state competition in Marlboro. We had a new routine, and we placed fifth. We traveled to Franklin for our final and best meet.

Nothing But Net

Although the season has not yet ended, the Lady Bucs have been very successful so far. At this point they have a record of six wins and three losses in the Dual County League, and they are going strong. The major challenge the Bucs must face is getting past tough opponents — Acton-Boxborough and Westford Academy. With the help of Pete Cacciola and his conditioning program, the Bucs have been able to maintain high intensity throughout each game.

Coach Sullivan has been very pleased with this year's team, and she has a lot of hope for success next year. "I think this team is the best all-around team I've had. Jen Hanson, with close to 1000 points, is the leading scorer in the league, and she has more support from a well-rounded and talented team than she has in years past," said Sullivan. She feels that the new junior varsity coach, Lisa McManus, has contributed a great deal to the girls' basketball program, and Sullivan looks forward to a promising 1993-1994 season.

Through The Hoop

Uncertainty was the key word this past fall as basketball season began at Bedford High. Coach Greenwood was gone, and Coach Grady took over his position. After tryouts there were many new faces on the team including nine lettermen. Three players moved up from the JV and freshmen teams, and three freshmen unexpectedly earned spots on the team.

Although the opener against Wayland was a loss, many questions were answered. Two days later, the Bucs rebounded in a thriller at Acton. Trailing by close to twenty points at halftime, tough defense and execution on offense evened the score by the end of regulation. In overtime Bedford never trailed, and the road win was one of the highlights of the season.

For various reasons, including a chicken pox epidemic, the Bucs then entered a dry spell from which they had trouble escaping. The overmatched Bucs fought hard, but often they came up just a few points short. The team did come on strong toward the end of the season with several strong performances, including a victory at Weston. Hopes were high entering the state tournament, but a frustrating loss at St. Mary's ended Bedford's season. Nonetheless, many individual achievements do stand out.

Dave Lord made the most of this, his last season of basketball at Bedford High. His slashing drives to the basket and aggressive offensive rebounding earned him a spot on the All-Star team. He was joined there by Co-Captain John Mara, an aggressive player at both ends of the court who came to every game ready to play. John Ginn, also elected captain, provided strong leadership and intensity on defense. If the ball was on the floor, Ginn was on the floor. Colin Ross had to adjust to a new role on the team this year, and his season began slowly. One of the most belligerent players in the league, his game improved as the season wore on.

Junior Calvin Wilder, moved into the starting lineup late in the season. Returning with him next year will be Chris Midgett, Chris Farmer, Matt Dwyer, Tom Adams and Cedric Townes

SKI TEAM - SWIM TEAM

If one visits Nashoba Valley anytime from January to March, he is bound to meet Bedford's ski team practicing their slalom races. The ski team faced some unfavorable conditions this year — ice, sleet, and freezing temperatures, but that never stopped them. The day of the races, everyone arrived with their newly waxed skis, ready to ski down the mountain. Although the boys' and girls' teams never won, they always had a respectable finish.

The team finished every race within fifty points of third place.

The boys were led by Teri Ciccone and Stephen Aftosmis. Sarah Shamel and Carrie Ciaccia led the girls. Graduating seniors include Teri Ciccone, Lino Miani, Adam Udell, Stephanie Dubitsky, and Mary Mix. Congratulations on a great season and good luck next year.

Amazing as it sounds, the co-ed swim team enjoyed a successful season. Bedford proved to be stiff competition for other teams in the league. Diving champion Krystin Carpenter brought her expertise to the Buccaneers. Wendy Castellana also dove.

Charlie Axtell and Greg Ross led the team in swimming. The swim team maintained their competitive edge by holding rigorous practices and doing weight training. The team looks ahead to next year's challenges.

ICE HOCKEY TEAM

The pre-season report was not looking too promising for the skating Bucs. Head Coach Tom Griffiths was no longer with the team. It was rough for a couple of weeks for the Bucs without a coach. Then, Steve Bevins entered the picture. He had been to the State Finals many times with Shawsheen and Minuteman and decided to bring his coaching techniques to the Bucs.

The boys greeted Coach Bevins with open arms. It took awhile for them to get used to Bevins' techniques. For instance, the Bucs struggled with the "breakout" and the "forecheck". When the guys started to get the hang of it, things began to click.

Bevins was assisted by Paul Dontremont and Coach Henry (a volunteer coach). Junior captains Wayne Sullivan, Matt Gallant and Sean Mee rallied behind the team. The goaltending was split this year between junior Matt Gallant and sophomore James Paredes.

The first line consisted of the leading scorer for the Bucs, Wayne Sullivan. Jeff Sullivan and Neil Fluckinger helped out Wayne Sullivan on the wings. The second line, which got the name the "Dogs" because of their hard work, consisted of Matt Hansen and Mike Anderson at the wings who were centered by Rob Hannon.

Senior Mark Veits had his share of playing time with hard work and crushing body checks. The players that will be showing promise for next year are juniors Mike Rossi and Brian Jardine, along with freshman Nick Anderson.

The people behind the ripping slapshots and amazing checks were the solid defensemen. They were lead by senior John Boland, junior Bill Martines, sophomore Brian Maranian and freshman Matt Maddox. Bill Boland spent his time as both a forward and a defenseman.

The Bucs earned well-deserved respect. With many of their penalty free games, the referees began to side with Bedford. Even though the guys never had the joy of a victory, Bevins can guarantee that this young team will be fighting back for years to come in the Bedford High tradition.

INDOOR TRACK - RIFLE TEAM

Although the boy's results weren't the greatest and the girls team was too small to be officially scored, the indoor track team enjoyed a fun season. New to the girl's team were freshmen Alyssa Robinson and Crissy Geilfuss who improved and excelled in their events. Sophomore sprinter Sharlene Tobin showed her speed, running well at the state class meet at Harvard. Sophomore Katie Carpenter also worked hard this season and competed well. Sophomores Michelle Cronin and Jen Brown also contributed to the spirit and fun of the team. Junior captain Carolyn Fanelli looked strong in the 600, running with the tops in the state. Senior captain Cait Hurley enjoyed a fine season as well. She ran well at the Dartmouth Relays early in the season, breaking the school record of 5:15. She cut it pretty close, running a 5:14.9. She ran 5:13.5 later in the season. On the boys side of the team, sophomores Bryant Chisholm, Matt Giusti, and Sean Waldron all made the state class meet and performed great against more experienced opponents. Sprinter Chisholm broke the school record in the 40, set by Reggie Kenon. Freshman Russ Kleekamp was a pleasant surprise in the high jump. Sophomores

Sewon Im and Naveen Wadhwa continued to improve their times, both showing promise for next year. Junior Aaron Rashba ran track for the first time and improved greatly. Seniors Alan Pedersen, Armrith Gunsekara, and Scott Kleekamp looked strong in their respective events. Scott did especially well for Bedford in the high jump, 45 yard hurdles, and shot put. Senior Mike Esposito worked hard this season and was a great team leader. Despite some recurring hip problems, Mike was running the 2-mile at a fast pace by the end of the season. Senior captain Matt Ross was a standout in the 300 and 600, as was senior Jason Campoli. Senior captain Viet Le was injured most of the season, but was a good cheerleader.

TARGET PRACTICE.

Ron Blanchette pulls the trigger, hoping he was right on target.

The BHS Rifle team has done very well this season, with a number of new shooters joining the team. Many students participated, and were coached by teacher Bill Keup. The captains of the team this year were David Gersh and Joanna Jeffery, a student from Concord-Carlisle High School. The members of the team all saw improvement during the season and were very proud of their accomplishments. From late December through early February, the students fired in the BHS rifle range. The range is located in the basement, adjacent to the old weight training room. Members of the team shoot .22 caliber long rifles. The shooters fire at small targets, at a distance of 50 feet. These targets are so small that the "10" ring is only the size of a pencil dot. The team fires against three other teams: Gloucester, New Bedford, and Rogers from Rhode Island. Next year, the team has a good shot (no pun intended) at becoming state champions due to the number of able shooters which the team boasts.

"TAKE IT LIKE A MAN!"

With the entire squad returning the 1993 Bucs were looking forward to a season full of promise. After last year's 10 - 10 finish, the Bucs were expecting to place high in the DCL. They were led by last years leading hitters Bryan Albonese, and Dave Venuti, who were once quoted as saying, "We've got a lot of talent this year, we have to work hard during every practice, and we'll get out of it what we put into it." Also a solid pitching staff, headed by juniors Matt Gallant and Wayne Sullivan as well as sophomore Jason McCormick, provided a solid nucleus. Led by seniors Paul Stone and Matt McGarry, the Bucs infield, "Death Valley" is feared throughout the DCL. Making diving catches and causing casualties along the way, they still managed to turn numerous double plays. Along with "Death Valley" the outfield, "Bermuda Triangle" raised eyebrows with their marvelous grabs and sensational hurls. With the speed of Colin Ross, the arm of Billy Katz, and the hustle of Geoff Chase, every ball which flew through the outfield never appeared on radar and was never seen or heard.

With the emotional leaders, Mike McGarry, George Chen, Jim Sullivan, Rich Atkinson, and Dan Hogleund, also known as "Hired Guns", spirits were always high on the bench and goals were always reached. The "Hired Guns" added, "We're not here to make people laugh, we are here to play ball, and we give a 100% EVERYDAY!"

SOFTBALL

One of BHS's strongest athletic teams is the Girls Softball team. With several delays during the start of the season due to the weather (SNOW!), the team did not play their opening game until mid-April.

However, from the players', coaches', and fans' point of view, Bedford High School Softball has the potential for a great season. All starters returned from last year's team with the exception of the pitcher. Ace pitcher, Sarah Rosenberg has taken over the mound with Kelly Gullage backing her up. Behind the plate, Carla Inferrera, a previous DCL All-Star, takes charge of the field. Eileen Hartwell plays first base, with Lexie Ross as occasional support. Tara Slavin works hard at second base and Jennifer Hanson (a player feared by other teams) is a sensational shortstop. Debbie Downs shows her speed and agility at third base. Playing left, center, and right fields, respectively, are Kim Duda, Katy Doherty, and Carla Gianetta. The daring designated hitter is Mary Mix. As for the bench, they're the best ones around - there are many strong and spirited players, including Beverly Horsch, Wendy Chase, Christine Harrington, and Kim Raffa.

TENNIS TEAMS

Tennis is a strange game. With its complex scoring system, where love equals zero, a bad attitude can get you in a little more trouble than you may think. Many people think that being crazy is a prerequisite for playing this game. Very few people would stand on a small court and let their opponents direct balls with amazing speed and force toward them.

The girls, led by seniors Meg Boschetto, Laurie Sheflin, and Stephanie Dubitsky, had a reasonable season. Although not every game was a win, the girls always stuck together and knew that winning is not everything. Instead of dwelling on their record, the team went out on the courts and gave it their best shot.

The Bedford High School team was up against some tough competition. The girls' biggest match was against Concord-Carlisle, who have remained the DCL champions for as long as anyone can remember. Despite the odds, the girls showed the other teams that Bedford was a strong opponent and managed to pull off some awe-inspiring wins.

Under the instruction of Mrs. Aldorizio, the girls showed immense growth and some great sportsmanship. "Winning isn't everything; Just go out there and try your best." Thanks to Mrs. Aldo's inspiring words, the girls went out and gave it their best shot. The girls are looking forward to next year with a good attitude and hope to improve their record with sweat and hard work.

Boys' tennis led by Coach Deardorff, was very experienced since only one player graduated last year. Bedford struggled against the strong Dual Country League, including arch-rival and state champs Lincoln-Sudbury, Concord-Carlisle, and Wayland. The team was led by senior captains, "The Red Terror" Big Daddy Hursh, "Tough Guy" Viet Le, and "The Sweet Singing Suede" Alan Pedersen. Joining the three senior members of the varsity team are juniors Adam Smith and Rohit Kaul, sophomores Naveen Wadhera and Corey Gelormini, and freshman Sam Richards.

OUTDOOR TRACK

The spring track team has survived the wet weather and an epidemic of shin splint injuries and is gearing up for a successful season. The boys' team numbers about 25 and the girls' also have a good-sized squad. The boys' attack will be led by senior captains Matt Ross, Jason Campoli, and Mike Esposito, who are among the most experienced runners in the school. Senior Gregg Rivinius and juniors Marcus Harris, Chris Midgett, and Chris Farmer are the only other upperclassmen on the roster.

The team is fortunate to have an abundance of underclassmen runners who will not only help to power the team this year, but who will give Bedford Track strength in future years. Among the underclassmen are sprint-god Bryant Chisholm, ironmen Steve Robinson and Tony Richards, field event specialists Greg Cohen and Chris Aumann, and Cedric "what's up?" Townes. Others include middle-distance runners Gilbert Tsang and Adam Chiocca. Yung En Chen, Fred Gableman, Ron Blanchette, and Andy Bournoff will be flying through some short-distance races, while Ben Waterhouse will be supplementing the distance squad.

The girls' team features 1992 Massachusetts 2-mile champ Cait Hurley as well as fellow captains Kim Sands and Carolyn Fanelli. DCL javelin champ Darrell Russell will throw once again for Bedford and junior Wendy Castellana will be a sprinter to watch. Other competitors are Carrie Ciaccia, Mindy Pulsipher, Michelle Pulsipher, Catharine French-Fuller, and freshman Kerrie Duncan among others. Both teams possessed the abilities to challenge and defeat DCL opponents.

Wins were elusive for the Bedford Lacrosse team, but that didn't phase such a hardy bunch. "Well, we tried. We deserve the sportsmanship award," said Teri Ciccone. "Lacrosse is a game of etiquette," added Rob Hannon. Jason Setters had a different view of the game, saying, "This is a sport for men."

Co-captain John Ginn shared his view on the season. "We may have dropped a lot of balls on the ground, but at least we deopped a lot of bodies, too." The ball did end up on the ground an awful lot for the Bucs, but under the able direction of coaches Campbell, Goodwin, and O'Neil, the team made great strides in skill, and, dammit, they had a good time.

Involvement and Adventure

It is eleven p.m., and the drama club is just wrapping up a Carousel rehearsal. The cast has worked dilligently for the past five hours. They all say goodnight and look forward to tomorrow's practice.

This kind of unfailing dedication is not unusual at Bedford High School. Almost every student has a passion for something — acting, singing, playing a musical instrument, writing, or a devotion to community service.

Students pursue their talents by joining clubs and spending time with others who share similar interests. When the last bell rings at 1:55, the halls are crowded with school-weary kids looking forward to winding down with sports practice or a science league meeting.

This year, a new group called the Student Atmosphere Committee was formed in order to foster a growing sense of community at Bedford High School. The committee sponsored a Student Outreach Program at the beginning of the year to combat racism among students, and the committee also opened "The Grub," a snack bar that was opened after school to accomodate Bedford's hungry students. The Student Atmosphere Committee is just one example of Bedford students taking the initiative.

Carousel

March went out like a lion as the Bedford High School music department performed Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical, Carousel. For the most part, the cast wasn't as excited as they had been in previous years, but as the show drew nearer, the excitement grew.

Carousel is the story of a young girl, Julie Jordan, who falls in love with a carousel harker, Billy Bigelow, and eventually marries him and she becomes pregnant. Meanwhile, Julie's friend, Carrie Pipperidge, falls in love with Enoch Snow, and they plan to get married. Their relationship is almost ruined by the villain, Jigger Craig, who is an ex-con and Billy's wicked sidekick. After a real nice clam-bake, Jigger and Billy plan to go back to the mainland and steal money from a wealthy mill owner, Mr. Bascombe. Their plan does not go according to schedule and they get caught. When Billy realizes he can't escape, he kills himself. As the crowd returns from the clam-bake, Julie enters and finds out that her husband is dead. She is comforted by Nettie Fowler, her cousin, with whom she and Billy had been living. Billy goes to heaven and gets a chance to come back and see his daughter who is now 15 years old. Billy is able to let his wife and daughter know of his love before he must go back to heaven.

Senior John Woolard and junior Julie Bayne were chosen to play the leading roles of Billy and Julie.

Their voices beautifully complemented each other during the love song, "If I Loved You." Senior Laurie Sheflin, as Carrie, demonstrated her excellent acting and singing skills as she sang "Mister Snow." She was joined by junior Heath Dill, as Enoch. Nettie, played by senior Jane Atkinson, was the strong character in the show. She led the chorus in the rousing number, "June Is Bustin' Out All Over." Later in the show, she sang the comforting, "You'll Never Walk Alone," and her beautiful voice brought tears to many eyes. The show's two villains, carousel owner Mrs. Mullin and Jigger played by junior Sarah Rosenberg and sophomore Naveen Wadhera, were definitely the crowd favorites. Sophomore Michelle Pulsipher played the daughter, Louise, and danced a beautiful ballet. These characters were joined by the rest of the ensemble, and the exceptional orchestra accompanied the performances. The stage crew, led by stage manager Brian Drohan, worked hard on the sets.

The cast performed the show on March 11, 12, and 15 because of a snowstorm. The cast was worried that performing on a Monday night would be a downer, but the audience was unexpectedly responsive, and the last show was upbeat and exciting. All in all, the experience was fun for all and "we all had a real good time!"

Foreign Language Clubs

AVC! Holai Bolljour! The Latin, Spanish and French clubs at Bedford High School are not only educational, but also fun! Students are given a chance to socialize with friends while improving their foreign language skills.

The Latin Club, led by officers George Chen, Dave Venuti, John Ginn, and Dave Boffa, struts its stuff in togas. They add a sense of history with their knowledge of Greek and Roman customs, legends, and innovations.

The Spanish Club had a strong year under the leadership of Jen Brown, Courtney Donovan, Katie Brown, and Rita Patino. The club strove to raise money for new programs by selling candy. Many students nibbling on these tempting treats were thankful to the Spanish Club.

The French Club once again offered a chance for conversation, food, and fun at its monthly Salon de The du Cercle Francia. Stephanie Dubitsky, Lauren Stewart, Carrie Ciaccia, and Meg Boschetto were the backbone of the organization. The club once again organized the school-wide "Love Connection."

All of the language clubs had their own Halloween parties, where students dressed up in costumes, and competed in various silly games and races. Food, folks, and fun was abundant, as always.

Foreign Language Week is the highlight of all of the year's events. Room decorating, the International Cafe, the Culture Bee, and the annual International Dinner bring students of all clubs and language classes together.

All of the clubs would like to thank their advisors for their time and dedication: Mr. Kelly (Latin Club), Ms. Rull (Spanish Club), and Mrs. Rands (French Club). Without their support and leadership, the clubs would not be what they are today.

Inspiring Instrumentalists

If you walk down D hall after school, there is almost always music to be heard. Perhaps you'll hear a student practicing for an upcoming orchestra test or a band member trying to memorize marching band music.

Practice has given great results to this year's instrumental programs. Members of Wind Ensemble and Concert Band showed spirit this fall by participating in marching band. Their routines and stands music inspired both players and spectators.

Both the Concert Band and Wind Ensemble created beautiful music for the Winter Concert in February. The Wind Ensemble particularly impressed the audience with its medley of songs from the recent Broadway smash, "Miss Saigon."

The Bands joined forces to march in the annual Bedford Day and Memorial Day parades. On Bedford Day, the band marched down Great Road, bringing a rush of excitement and enthusiasm to expectant onlookers. Orchestra was blessed this year by the addition of a talented freshman class.

Thirty members strong, The group performed in December. This year the orchestra combined with select members of the wind ensemble to form a full orchestra.

Music can be heard at Bedford High School at all hours of the day. Imagine walking into school on a dreary Monday morning and being greeted by beautiful chamber music. This is not a dream, it is a reality. Beginning to play at 6:50 every other morning, the chamber music group practices long and hard to accompany the choir and also members of the Madrigals Chorus at the annual Madrigal Dinner.

Sensational Singers

This year has proven to be exciting for the music students at BHS. The number of programs offered is amazing, and music director Mr. Low has done a great job keeping up with all the rehearsals and performances.

In early December, Madrigal presented the fourth annual Madrigal Dinner, a medieval feast which was a smashing success. Members of the Madrigal Choir dressed in medieval garb and entertained audiences with music, drama, and dance. Choir members joined in the festivities by serving guests as wenches. This year's script, written by seniors Jane Atkinson and Laurie Sheflin, had a unique twist. The audience was asked to help solve a sudden and unexpected murder.

In addition to Choir and Madrigal, which are classes during the school day, students can also participate in other extracurricular singing groups. The Show Choir, led by Mr. Low, is a large group which performs show tunes and swing pieces. There are also both male and female student-run groups. The Double Sextette, a group of twelve girls led by Jane Atkinson and Laurie Sheflin, performs three-part pop and seasonal music. The men's octet, led by John Woolard, sings lively barber-shop classics.

Many concerts have been held featuring Choir, Madrigal, Double Sextette, Show Choir, and Men's Octet. In the winter concert, the combined Choir and Madrigal groups performed sections of Vivaldi's "Gloria" beautifully. During the holiday season, the Madrigal and Double Sextette groups sang at nursing homes and at the Hanscom Officer's Club. Vocal groups at Bedford High School contribute to both the school and the community.

Marching Band

In rain, snow, sleet, or hail, the rugged Bedford High School marching band performs its duty. This year, they not only practiced on brisk Friday afternoons, but they also marched after the sun had set, every Wednesday evening. This year, band leader Steven Barbas, instilled a new motto into the hearts of band members: "Practice doesn't make perfect. Perfect practice makes perfect."

This year's band, fifty-five members strong, was both bigger and better than last year's band. A group of freshmen complemented the talented veterans. In competitions, they fared well. Band members performed at the Shepherd Hill Competition and the Arlington Band Jamboree. A third strong performance at the Billerica Invitational earned the band a four star rating.

Those who missed the band's competitive shows could catch its half-time numbers at the football games. Alex Brill, in his second year as drum major, led the band with skill and enthusiasm. Brill awed the crowd with his expert manipulation of the baton. He ended the drill with a magnificent toss. This year, the band's rousing musical program consisted of "A Winter's Tale," "Under the Boardwalk," "Late in the Evening," and "Tennessee Waltz."

At football games, the band entertained spectators with lively stands music. Crowd favorites were "Louie Louie," "Hey Baby," and "Land of a Thousand Dances." This season was characterized by improvement. Many freshmen who had never marched before quickly learned the basics. The percussion section, after losing experienced players, struggled at first, but ended up succeeding. The marching band had one of their best sessions in recent years, and is looking forward to next year.

Fabulous Flags

Each year, the color guard is the highlight of the marching band's performances. This year, however, the color guard consisted of only flags. In years past, majorettes have also been part of the squad. After three out of four majorettes graduated last year, the squad decided that a focus on flag would make their performance stronger. This year's squad was very young; most members had never twirled flags before. However, the squad, led by senior captain Rachael Berkowitz and sophomore captain Kelly Gullage, learned quickly. Practicing every day after school, they produced a complicated routine.

In "A Winter's Tale," the squad showed pride and precision as they twirled their pink and silver flags. In "Under the Boardwalk," they brought a touch of summer into the cold November evenings with their neon flags. To the Latin groove of Paul Simon's "Late in the Evening," the squad combined dancing and rings, to the crowd's delight. They were graceful and elegant in the finale, "Tennessee Waltz." Although most of the squad started the season as beginners, by the end of the season, the group was a polished, poised team.

B.H.S Students Break A Leg

Telemedia's year has been full of ups and downs. After a respectable start, the group ran into problems half-way through the year. "B.H.S. Live" was cancelled because of an alleged lack of student effort. Many students disagreed. Obviously there are still students who are willing to work. A contract was drawn up to produce a bi-monthly show, but people would still like to see a return to daily programming. Who knows what next year will bring for Bedford High School's favorite television show?

The drama club, on the other hand, has had an exciting year. There was high participation in the annual Tournament of Plays. The club sold t-shirts to commemorate the occasion. Student production night was also a big success: a good time was had by all. In March, members went on a theatre trip to New York City to see Cats and Guys And Dolls. As the year came to a close, the drama club performed their annual spring play, "Twelve Angry Jurors."

"We Can't Go Home Yet... It's Only Midnight!"

Jane Atkinson and Andrea Bowlby adopted this motto early in the year when they scrambled to complete a November deadline. Long after students and faculty had gone home, Jane and Andrea, editors of "Coming Together 1993," paced the floor of the cluttered yearbook workroom and racked their brains to create exciting page layouts and write captions for hundred of photos. Few weekends went by when Jane and Andrea did not take home a computer to work on an approaching deadline or to correct proofs.

Anybody who worked on the yearbook staff this year can attest to the fact that publishing a history of the school year is an overwhelming responsibility. The staff was largely inexperienced so the year was more or less a comedy of errors. The day Burlington Studios was scheduled to take the senior class portrait on the bleachers, the staff discovered that there was no sign for the number three - as in Class of 1993. Misty Ullom saved the day by painting another poster, but the seniors were almost the Class of 199. The photography studio that took the underclassmen pictures neglected to give us the names and grades of several students, so staff members were forced to go to the cafeteria, photos in hand, and ask people, "Do you know this person?" To make matters worse, some of the labeled photos the studio gave to the yearbook staff contained errors. One jokster had said that his name was Ben Dover. To add insult to the injury, both editor Andrea Bowlby and adviser Mr. Rinaldi had surgery and missed a great deal of school.

However, a few devoted staff members tolerated the chaos and sacrificed their time and energy for the good of the yearbook. Heath Dill, resident computer expert, dropped everything to put his Page-Maker skills to work and converted countless layouts to the computer. Jill Freeman and Irene Boyle helped in every capacity imaginable. Section editors included Rita Patino, Julie St. Sauveur, Misty Ullom, Meg Boschetto, Laurie Sheflin, David Gersh, Jennifer Blackstone, Mary Mix, and Krystin Carpenter.

The yearbook was not all work and no play. The staff celebrated at Papa Gino's after meeting the first deadline, and they enjoyed a party at the end of the year.

SADD

SADD

"Students Against Drunk Driving, better known as SADD, is an organization that tries to warn students of the dangers of drugs and alcohol, especially while driving. This program has saved many lives. SADD sells refreshments at basketball games, and sponsors many drug and alcohol awareness programs. It's time to say good-bye to a man whose name was been synonymous with SADD for the past several years - Bernard Gollis. We'll all miss his stories and his loyal dedication to the SADD organization. Under Mr. Gollis' supervision, four co-leaders helped brainstorm for fundraisers and awareness programs. Seniors Meg Boschetto, Cait Hurley, Kim Sands, and sophomore Naveen Wadhera tried to make SADD an organization of which Mr. Gollis, in his last year at Bedford High School, can be proud."

Honor And Leadership Go Hand In Hand

Aerospace Science, commonly called ROTC — most students at BHS really have no clue what it is all about. It is not written down somewhere. It has to be experienced. ROTC is leadership.

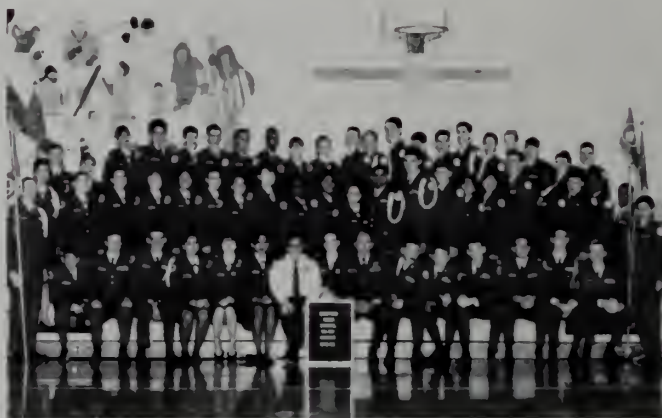

Some might say, "How can ROTC mean so much? It's just a class where you have to wear a uniform once a week." But that is just it — you do not have to wear the uniform — you are allowed to. It is all in how you look at it.

ROTC is not just a class, it is a club, fraternity, and varsity sport all in one. And just like a varsity sport, some units are better than others, it all depends on how hard you work. ROTC is a leadership laboratory. The most important thing a cadet learns is how to lead ... military style. An AFJROTC officer has a lot of responsibility. Not just to his or her commander, but to the entire corps which counts on him or her to do his or her assigned duty. Motivating the cadets to do that duty is the job for a leader. Joining ROTC can definitely be a rewarding and valuable experience.

Like ROTC cadets, NHS members are leaders — in the school and in the community. Students who belong to the National Honor Society not only earn good grades, but they contribute to society. NHS students tutor peers, participate in charity events such as The Walk For Hunger, and volunteer their time at local organizations.

Math & Science Leagues

The science team at BHS has been very successful this year to the delight of the advisors Mr. Ullmann and Mrs. Krueger. Whether it be recognizing frog and insect species, making paper airplanes, or analyzing indicators, the Bedford students have been coming out on top. Last year, the team was young and had trouble at the meets. However, with one more year of experience, the team has a good chance of winning the state competition in the spring. Anyone is invited to join the team at any time during the season. Even people who hate science can come to a meet and have fun making paper airplanes and eating the free pizza. With so many talented freshman and sophomore team members this year, Mr. Ullmann and Mrs. Krueger see a bright future for the team.

The BHS math team has not experienced quite the same success as the science team, but faculty advisor Mr. Stephenson remains proud of his dedicated math students. The team has avoided last place in many of its meets, and even has the chance to finish third to last at the end of the season. If it weren't for various setbacks during the year, such as showing up at a meet without having been informed that calculators were allowed, the math team would definitely be in first place. However, Bedford team members remain content with their position. The meets are a lot of fun, with all the Bedford students rushing around trying to find a pencil, and the excitement is overwhelming, especially when Mr. Stephenson finds himself with a successful team.

Students Speak Out!

Bedford High School students like to speak out, whether it be verbally or in writing. The debate team and the Bedford High School Forum, the school newspaper, offer opportunities for both forms of expression.

The debate team is made up of students who were born to argue. Under the guidance of Mr. Milliken, the team learns the basics of arguing effectively. The diligent debaters spend long hours researching, writing, and rehearsing their arguments. Team member Aaron Rashba extols the life of a debater: "It's a great chance to yell. I especially like to shout at people wearing suits" Obviously, a lot of students like to vent their feelings because in recent years, the debate team has been growing in number. With its new members, the team is gaining momentum and strength.

This year's Forum has a new look. Instead of its printing and distribution being confined to the school, the paper now reaches the community once a month as part of the Bedford Minuteman. Editors Stephanie Dubitsky and Mark McInnis direct and assist the writing team, as well as write articles themselves. They receive strong leadership from faculty advisor Mr. McCarthy. One goal of the paper this year is to include provocative articles and to inspire thought from its readers.

FREELANCE. Writer Jill Freeman's face lights up even at the mention of Forum. Jill also publishes her own school newspaper that includes articles written in foreign languages. The paper is appropriately titled The Journal of Tongues.

HOT OFF THE PRESS. Forum editor Mark McInnis and a curious John Ginn inspect the latest issue.

COMPETITION. Cait Hurley and Laurie Sheflin heatedly dispute whose article should appear in the May issue.

FUTURE PLANS

As the school year comes to a close, seniors get bombarded with advice and questions about their future. One student complained, "I'm so sick of my parents giving me driving tips and telling me to get a job." This is not an unusual gripe. During senior year, highschoolers discover that no matter where they go, they can not escape from adults who ask, "So, what do you plan to do with the rest of your life?"

At the risk of annoying already overburdened seniors, Carrie Ciaccia asked a group of students preparing to enter the real world what they envisioned themselves doing within the next twenty years. Chris Coates hopes to accept an Academy Award for best musical score. Jason Campoli wants to compete for the World Cup in soccer, and Brian Drohan wants to sail around the world. Jane Atkinson, on the other hand, hopes to meet Ellis Burks within twenty years. Laurie Sheflin, David Hursh, and Alex Brill aim to be happy in life. Brian Fehlau is not thinking that far into the future. He joked, "My goal is just to graduate from high school and go onto college."

UP TO NO GOOD. Paul Stone smiles mischievously. Does he know something we don't?

CLOWNING AROUND. A group of seniors gather on the steps near the cafeteria after school.

FUTURE PLANS. Colin Ross and John Ginn dream what they will be doing twenty years from now.

PEOPLE

Senior Class Officers

Over the past four years, the senior class officers have evolved into a cohesive unit. They are not only friends, but they work together, along with advisor Mr. Sabourin, to organize many school sponsored events.

The class officers have always displayed a contagious enthusiasm for the Class of '93 at pep rallies and athletic competitions. Additionally, class officers often host activities. This year, President Mark McInnis and Vice President Dave Boffa emceed the talent show. Most importantly, class officers are respected by other students. During a special assembly addressing the problems of graffiti on school property, McInnis urged students to take care of Bedford High School.

The class officers also work year-round planning the senior prom. Treasurer Kristen Colliton has been busy organizing fundraising events, and Social Officer Rachael Berkowitz and Prom Chairman Mary Mix have been working hard to arrange the logistics of the prom. All of the class officers have worked diligently all year.

Word to Webster

Some people claim that everyone at Bedford speaks the same language, but each group uses unique catch phrases. So if you ever find yourself not knowing what your friends are talking about, maybe this guide to current slang will help.

Posse - slang term from the Latin, possus, meaning a group of friends who get together for everything from beer drinking to ruthless conquering.

Wicked - describes the magnitude of something; used in conjunction with another adjective, for example: Wicked mint! (mint means cool.) or Wicked cool! (cool means mint.)

Hurl - This expression, which means vomit, was coined by Wayne Campbell on Saturday Night Live when he turned to his good pal and posse member Garth and said, "I think I'm gonna hurl!" Synonyms of hurl include puke, spew, gag, barf, retch, and blow chunks.

Yo - popular word used to convey greetings, surprise, or disagreement; also used to get someone's attention. For example, you might say, "Yo! Get outta my way, I'm gonna spew!"

So, now that you know a little about slang in Bedford, be sure to tell your posse all the wicked mint words you picked up in school. Okay?

Good. See ya later - word to your mutha!

Ugh. I think I'm gonna hurl.

Political Insight

1992 was the year of an important election that addressed many controversial issues. Bedford High School had their own election with Bill Clinton winning a majority of the votes. I went around asking students who they would have voted for if they could have and why, as well as their opinions on issues addressed during the campaign. All of the students I interviewed had obviously already given the issues a great deal of thought and had a lot to say.

The majority of the people I interviewed said they would have voted for Clinton. "The country needs a change," Sarah Eppler explained. Siri Hanson felt that, "He offered a better way of helping the economy." Joanne Mackie said, "Bush has been up to his old tricks." The economy and Clinton's stand on issues such as education and abortion were the main reasons why students supported Clinton. Other students such as Debbie Downs and Jeanette Hagon did not trust Clinton and wanted Bush for president. "Clinton's junk!" said Debbie. "I don't believe in abortion and I don't trust Clinton," were reasons Jeanette gave.

Heath/Louis Dill would have voted for Perot because, "Bush is lazy and Clinton's a democrat - a reason in itself." There was one vote for Brian Sparrow, a recent graduate of BHS, from Vin Welch.

One very controversial issue that has been getting much attention recently is abortion. When asked how she felt about abortion, Cyndi Nerney said, "Nobody has a right to tell a woman what she can do with her body." Mary DeMoss agreed with her: "Government shouldn't have a say. It is only a woman's decision."

Many other students were pro-life. Heather Hirsch pointed out, "If you're old enough to mess around, you're old enough to pay for your consequences." Sarah Carvey said, "I think abortion should be illegal, except in cases such as rape or when the mother is endangered. It's a touchy subject."

The other question I asked students was whether or not they felt homosexuals should be allowed in the military. Again, there were many students supporting both sides. Chris Farmer supported allowing homosexuals into the military: "Who has the right to make a decision based on sexual preference. This is a free country. It is the same as saying a black can't serve in the military." Conney Crespo agrees with Chris: "It is a matter of ability, not sexual preference. On the other hand, Vin Welch feels that, "The military is not a democracy. Letting in homosexuals would be incredibly bad for morale."

Finally, I asked students what they felt is the most important issue of today. Carolyn Fanelli responded with, "Building up the economy to compete in the world market." Many other students cited the economy and the national debt as the most important issues. Heath Dill felt, "Domestic issues such as crime, drugs, and early education need to be addressed. This will in turn help the economy." Others mentioned AIDS and prejudice. On the more humorous side, when asked what he felt the most important issue of today was, Marcus Harris replied, "FOOTBALL!"

Dating Disasters

Have you ever experienced a blind date from hell? You know...the one who came an hour late, forgot your name and had no idea how to eat with silverware?

All of us have experienced a dating nightmare, firsthand or through a vivid recount of a friend. Though these stories may seem amusing to hear after the fact, often a bad rendez-vous can render a person mentally distraught for days afterwards.

Everyone has different ideas about what constitutes a date from hell but there are certain pre-requisites that all bad dates easily meet:

1. You feel like walking home no matter where you are!
2. You have a migraine headache that won't quit.
3. You feel like locking yourself in the bathroom until your date is over.
4. You would rather slide down a razor blade into a pool of alcohol then stay with your date.
5. All of a sudden, you have a violent urge to do your math.
6. Your date thinks McDonalds is a gourmet meal.
7. You don't mind seeing "Plan 9 From Outer Space" if it means you don't have to talk to your date.
8. You never realized that anyone could smell that bad.
9. You count down the minutes until it is over.
10. You spend most of the date thinking of different diseases you could fake and leave gracefully.

If you do experience a bad date, don't worry about it too much. Look on the bright side...you now join the ranks of the nameless millions who have experienced perhaps an even worse date than you! Also, a bad date story is a great ice-breaker at parties and also at funerals. So a date from hell isn't all that bad. In fact, with the right attitude, a bad date can even be a blessing in disguise! But, if you haven't had a bad date yet, consider yourself lucky and pray you never do! ♣

A Threatening Epidemic

DS, Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, is a deadly disease." This is the way most people in Bedford High School perceive the illness. AIDS can be acquired by sex and sharing dirty needles. But of course students complain that they all know that by now since it has been drilled into their heads since fifth grade. They recite the facts by rote: One cannot acquire AIDS by sharing hairbrushes, or using public restrooms, or even shaking hands with someone who has the disease. Regrettably, even though highschoolers believe they know everything about the epidemic, 16-25 year olds are the fastest-growing part of the AIDS population.

When Anita Shewakramani asked her friends what they thought about AIDS, the vast majority of responses had to do with the fact that people are not taking the disease seriously. One classmate commented, "It's sad that many people are dying because they do not want to be educated about this disease!" Another student said, "People are more willing to accept AIDS and people with AIDS once they have been educated. They're not as quick to make assumptions."

It is the individual's responsibility to decide whether they want to help themselves and listen when others try to educate them about AIDS. Many students feel that the issue has been overemphasized in schools. There are many assemblies to teach us about AIDS, and they also describe others' experiences with the illness. We also discuss AIDS in health class, and the school committee is considering distributing condoms. However, we need this "overeducation" so that those who were not paying attention before may pay attention the next time.

One of Anita's classmates stated, "People are more aware of it (AIDS) now, and I'm happier." Many of the people Anita interviewed were concerned about the ignorance which has caused others to react to people infected with the virus in a bad way.

When asked if there would be a cure for AIDS, Anita received a variety of answers. Many said, "Yes," but some did say, "No." One out of nine people think that there will not be a cure for AIDS. Out of those who said, "Yes," there was a bit of disagreement about when it might happen. Some said that it would come about in a long time—"like in 100 years"! Others said that they thought that a cure would be developed in the near future. Those who said "no" just basically thought that it would be virtually impossible to make something so complex. So, who knows? Maybe a cure will be invented tomorrow, or maybe even in 20 years—perhaps never. There may not be any progress in the cure for AIDS, but hopefully there will be progress in the fact that people take the issue more seriously all the time.

Freshmen

Imagine that you are new, you do not know anyone, and everyone else knows each other. The layout of the school seems like a maze, and there are only ten seconds before the bell rings. To your relief, your student guide meets you at the door of your classroom and escorts you to lunch. After a week, you know your way around pretty well, and don't need a guide anymore, but it was nice to have one on those first days. This scenario is not an uncommon one at B.H.S., excepting one part, there isn't a guide.

The creation of a student guide group at B.H.S. would provide a needed service for incoming new students and could be implemented. With its connection to Hanscom Air Force Base, Bedford High School has a rapidly changing student population. This program would provide a needed service to many.

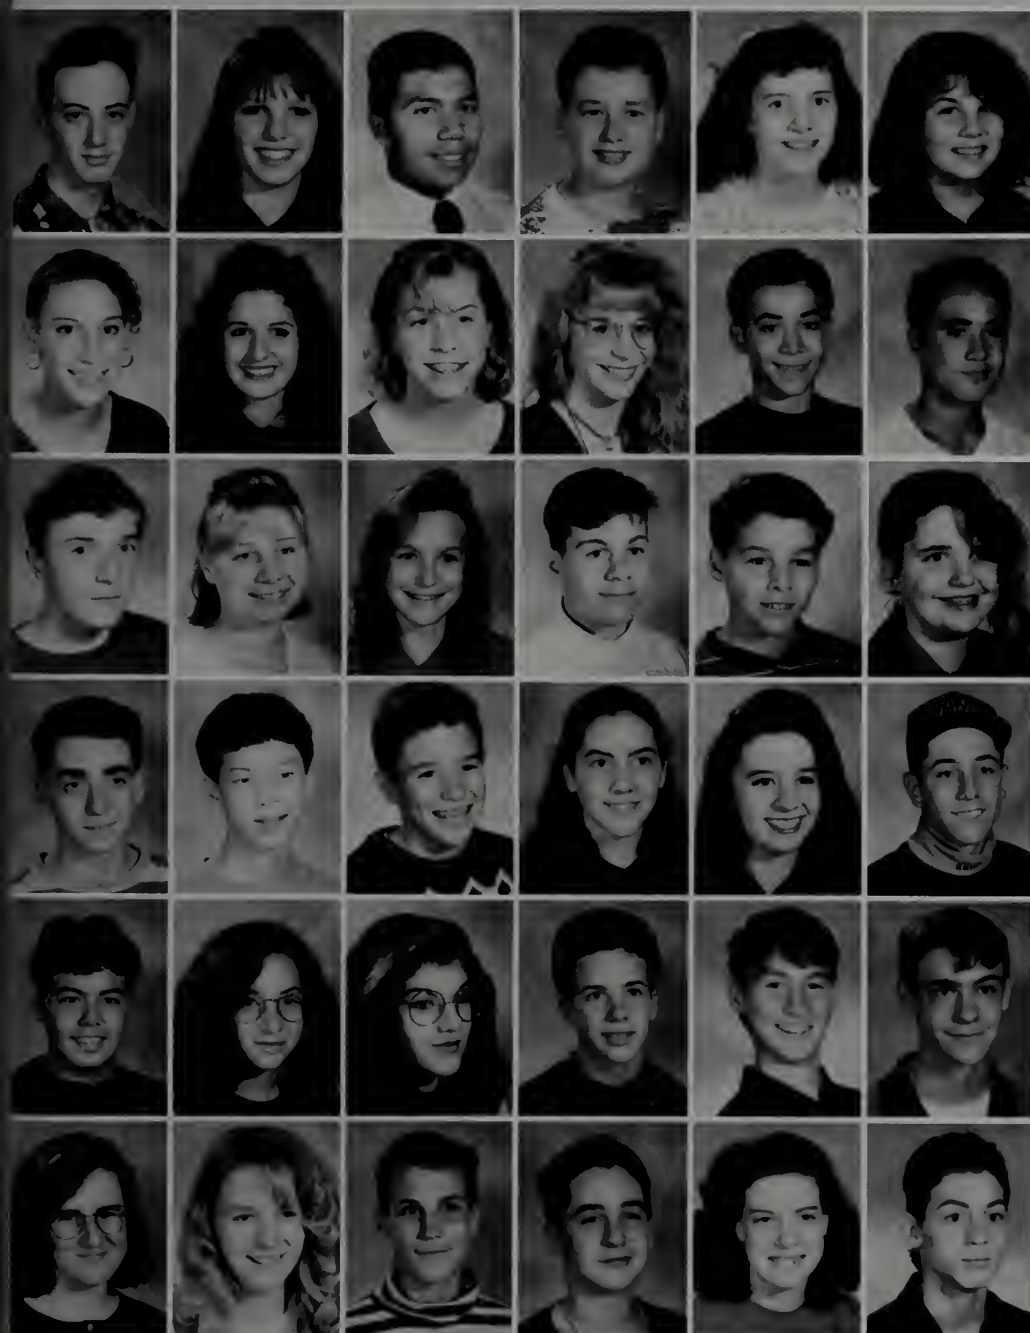

This formal system of guides would make the transition the first week much easier on a new student. A feeling of unfamiliarity is the experience of any student arriving at a large high school. An immediate contact with a veteran of the system would accelerate the period of adjustment for the new student by introducing him or her to friends and teachers and being available for advice.

Some people feel shy around those they don't know. A friendly face among the crowd would be a source of comfort, and the slight push that person may receive from his or her guide to meet people and join clubs would be a positive beginning to his or her high school career.

Change is a necessary part of everyone's life because through it we learn to become adaptive. Unfamiliar faces, classrooms, and procedures are only a few obstacles that a student must overcome when he or she arrives at a new school. With the implementation of a guide program, the adaptive process would be eased along with the helping hand, and both parties would benefit from its existence.

Mid-Year Anxiety

Why does the word midterm always produce a groan? Perhaps it is the thought of sitting in an intense academic atmosphere for two consecutive hours, or perhaps it is the realization that the outcome of these tests count for one-fifth of the final grade. Whatever the case may be, these exams often entail several hours of studying, severe anxiety attacks, and maybe even a sleepless night.

Well, what do students at Bedford High School think about midterms? Not surprisingly the majority of students feel they are an inaccurate gauge of what they know. Reactions range from:

—"Yuk!"

—"I don't want to talk about it!"

—"Oh, please."

to

One sophomore confided that she thought too much stock was put into midterms. "After all that work, two hours can totally ruin everything you have worked for." Katie Brown, a junior, stated she felt midterms were "no fun. I get so much stress."

After four years of midterms, seniors are old pros at taking long exams. When asked what advice she would give to underclassmen, Jill Freeman offered these suggestions, "Don't get tense. Prepare yourself early, and simply do your best. That's all you can expect, and if you don't do well, there's always next year ..."

A Day In The Life

It is seven o'clock in the morning at Bedford High. Teachers are slowly making their daily entrance and stopping by to chat with one another. In the background, the early morning chamber orchestra can be heard strumming away on their instruments. A few students can be seen wandering from room to room, locker to locker.

Suddenly it is seven-fifteen, and the hallways are full of students, backpacks, lunchbags, and especially chatter. The buses have finally arrived and most of the school population is ready to begin another great day at BHS. As the few stragglers mosey into homeroom, BHS live begins its daily commentary on people, sports, and weather at Bedford High School. Most students watch the show; others do last-minute homework; and still others spread the latest gossip. All of this abruptly ends as the clock strikes 7:50 and classes begin.

A few hours and several lectures later, E period begins - the time of day we have all grown to love. What does it mean? LUNCH! The freshmen and sophomores flock to the old cafe, while the upperclassmen enjoy the luxury of being able to sit in the new cafe. Students engage in the occasional food fight, cram for tests, and chit-chat with friends, all in the twenty minute lunch period.

Okay, only two more minutes until we are free. Eyes glance at the clock and see that it reads 1:53. Books are shuffled, people start thinking about their after-school activities, and class is forgotten. As the afternoon announcements come over the loudspeaker, everyone lines up at the door, eager to overflow the corridor. Finally school is over and the fun is about to begin at a soccer game or drama club rehearsal.

A Administration

One of the issues the administration is faced with is the issue of condom distribution. David Hursh wrote an article in the Bedford Minute-Man in response to this issue:

Today, we are faced with one of the scariest evils ever to exist in our country. It can attack anyone, whether he or she be black or white, heterosexual or homosexual, old or young.

It is AIDS, a virus which has been spreading farther and farther, faster and faster, infecting tens of thousands of Americans every year. A few years ago, United States' officials stated that within the next five years the number of AIDS cases and deaths would increase more than ten times.

Today, while more than a million Americans are HIV-positive, more than 80,000 of those are teen-agers. Many of those teen-agers unknowingly contract the virus in high school and will not show symptoms for years. In an age when more and more teen-agers are becoming sexually active, it is imperative that we do what we can to stop the spread of this disease. At the present time, the best and surest way to slow this epidemic is to make condoms available to all students in high school.

There are those traditional thinkers who instead of looking at the relevant issue, that of the fatal disease, hide behind their idealism. Those parents who feel that condom distribution puts across the wrong message to students are unaware of what students are learning in school. Students will not get the idea that parents are saying it's fine and moral to have a sexual relationship.

On the contrary, in the health courses at the high school, students are informed over and over that the only 100 percent effective method to prevent AIDS from spreading is abstinence. Abstinence is urged, but other methods of protection are described. Many people also feel that available means of protection, such as condoms, should remain a topic of conversation restricted to the home.

In other words, if parents want to deal with the issue, they will. Otherwise, kids should be left ignorant. Those who agree with this should simply take a look at the statistics. If AIDS continues to spread at the current rate, by the year 2000, 40 percent of all college students will be infected with the AIDS virus, mostly students who contracted the disease when they were in high school.

It can be difficult, but everyone must open his or her eyes and face the relevant problem. More teen-agers are sexually active than ever before; urging abstinence and then leaving the issue alone is not a solution. For those students who choose to be sexually active, there should be condoms available as a means to prevent the contraction of AIDS.

The AIDS Task Force has recently decided to recommend that condoms be made available in many public buildings in Bedford, including the high school. The Task Force stated the importance of condoms in three words: "Condoms save lives." Most students understand this, but many who might normally use condoms are too nervous to talk into CVS and purchase some.

Also, most students are unaware that condoms are available for free at the Town Center. Making condoms available in the school would therefore provide students with easy access. If a committee that was created for the sole purpose of researching such matters came to the conclusion that condom distribution in the high school would be beneficial, people would do best to support such a decision. The nurse could be available to distribute condoms to whomever needs them, and dispensers could be available in the bathrooms and locker rooms for those who would like to obtain a condom in privacy. Any possible increase in student sexual activity due to condoms being distributed in the high school would be justified by the decrease in the spread of AIDS, and the increase in life expectancy for the students.

The entire issue comes down to the fact that over 200,000 Americans are dying of AIDS, and condoms can help prevent students from contracting the virus. Health teachers can continue to urge abstinence, but that is not the only answer. In a traditionalist's ideal world, no one would become sexually active until he or she was married. However, we must look at the world around us. Urging abstinence will not keep people from dying. We should feel lucky that we have discovered a means of protection more practical for today's sexually active teen-agers. With the means available, it would be absurd not to make use of it. Unless we want to live in a world where half the population can expect to suffer a slow, drawn-out death, we should start making condoms available in the high school, before it is too late.

Innovative! Creative! Motivated! Persistent! . . . Dad!

These are all words students use to describe the infamous Mr. Huff. While some previous students of his give him the reputation of being very difficult, most present students feel that he is beneficially challenging.

Mr. Huff makes his students think. He enables them to learn beyond what is presented in the book. He uses the stock market, function projects, and real life situations to aid in his teaching. One student explains, "Mr. Huff is the first teacher that I've had that's begun to convince me that we really do need to understand math to be successful in life."

Besides being an interesting teacher, Mr. Huff is caring as well. He's willing to take the extra time for that additional explanation that a student may need after school or during a free period.

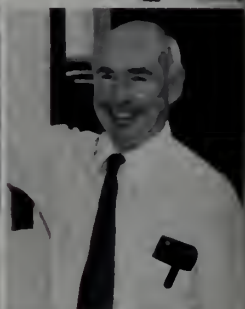

Mr. Huff is a teacher who asks how his student is doing if he or she seems to be having a bad day.

Along with everything else, Mr. Huff has had a big change in his life this year — a child. On behalf of all your students, congratulations on the birth of Curren Clinton Huff, and thanks for being a teacher we can count on.

Teacher Extraordinaire

Ms. Mitchell

Bedford High School has been lucky enough to have received an energetic new addition to its teaching staff. Mrs. Mitchell has come aboard as the health and physical education teacher at Bedford High School. Mrs. Mitchell arrived from Weymouth High School where she also taught health and P.E. for five years. She has been currently teaching at Bedford for two years. Mrs. Mitchell did not intend to become a teacher. She originally was arranging for a career in physical therapy. "I have always been interested in health, fitness, and nutrition," said Mitchell all of which contributed to her decision to switch majors to Health Education. When asked what she hoped to accomplish being a teacher and what has been the most rewarding aspect of the job, Mitchell simply answered the questions with one answer. She said that knowing that she had done her best in providing current and correct information about diseases that pose as problems to the lives of teenagers is as much an accomplishment and seeing students use the information in making responsible ble decisions is a reward.

In both her health and P.E. classes she incorporates a little variation in traditional education. Aerobics seems to be a favorite of students in her gym classes and games and roll playing assist in getting the point across in health class. Another class Mrs. Mitchell takes responsibility for peer leadership. She enjoys this class because she sees students who voluntarily help and provide advice for students their age and younger. One of the benefits of this class is students are able to participate in project adventure, a motivational and self esteem builder. Students encounter challenges and are encouraged by their peers to overcome their fears. Mrs. Mitchell says "its a great experience and it really does build confidence." Mrs. Mitchell largest obstacle of teaching career has been learning to overcome embarrassment in front of a classroom. She said that being in front of a class itself is a challenge. "You just have to learn to laugh when awkward situations arise"

Aside from teaching Mrs. Mitchell is also involved in an organization called the A.I.D.S Task Force which is constantly gathering information about the disease and passing this on to students. Additionally she is an advisor for the high school Student Atmosphere Committee, a group of students who work toward instilling a sense of unity among the students at B.H.S.

Mrs. Mitchell time, effort, and friendship are greatly appreciated by all students at Bedford High.

COMINGS AND GOINGS

Bill Clinton was voted in as our 42nd president. He campaigned for change. As he entered office, he decided to raise taxes and to cut spending.

Hillary Clinton, the new First Lady, is one of the top 100 lawyers in the country, and her biggest goal is to reform health care.

Once again we saw battles fought between Bosnia and Serbia over ethnicity. Hopefully one day these battles will end.

Johnny Carson stepped down from the Tonight Show after a long career of entertaining America.

Ross Perot, the Independent candidate for the Presidency, lost by a large margin to Bill Clinton and George Bush. His plans included changes for the business world.

Rudolph Nuryev, the ballet dancer who died of AIDS, will be remembered as an amazing performing artist. His skill and poise awed everyone.

In the wave of destruction wrought by Hurricane Andrew, people banded together to survive and rebuild. Aid flowed from all parts of the country.

Former President George Bush looked rather disconcerted at the end of his four year term. During his term, he showed that the United States would not back down to Third World dictators.

As Bill Clinton stepped into office, he was confronted with the question of whether or not to allow gays into the military.

Who will be watched more this year? Due to contract problems, Letterman and Leno will be aired at the same time

Al Pacino had a great performance playing a blind man in Scent of a Woman.

David Letterman is confident that he will beat Jay Leno in the Nielsen ratings.

Children in Somalia are grateful to the U.S. for their intervention against the warlords, thus pulling their country out of a bloody civil war.

Woody Allen and Mia Farrow split in a bitter divorce, following Woody's affair with their stepdaughter.

Basketball legend Larry Bird ended a victorious career with the Boston Celtics. The number 33 will remain a reminder for many years to come.

What will the tabloids write about now that the Royal couple has broken up? What does the Queen think?

Alex Haley, the author of Roots, died leaving the memory of a truly great author, and fighter for human rights.

The movie Chaplin came out, showing the life of one of our country's greatest silent movie actors.

Nobody will forget the L.A. riots following the Rodney King case. Hopefully we have learned a lesson in the aftermath.

The Red Sox made many changes after a disastrous 1992 season. Now a White Sox player, Ellis Burks made them regret letting him go by returning to Fenway with a bang, blasting his first homer of the season in his first at-bat against the Sox.

urt Parks was the long time host of the Miss America pageant.

remember when former Vice President Dan Quayle parodied fictitious Murphy Brown? She affirmed the fact that a working woman can be a single mother.

Almost 20 years after the end of the Vietnam War, Vietnam opened all of its files concerning Americans lost in the War.

Begin, the former Prime Minister of Israel worked hard against terrorism.

When will it end? Neo NAZI's rally in Germany. In the past years there has been a frightening increase in hate group activity. This is something that we should all work hard to put an end to.

READY TO GO. Contemplating over the last play and figuring on their next move, Bedford football puts their best foot forward.

LIMO OR LEMON? Members of the junior class rented a limo for the junior prom, but on the way, it broke down and they had to call a cab.

RED, WHITE, AND YOU. Rachel Tobin and Andrea Perez share a fun moment together. Who other than a good friend do you share memorable times with?

WASTED. Matt Ross looks like he's seen better days. But then again, we've seen better pictures of Matt! Why the hum-drum look Matt Ross? Could it be - SENIORITIS?

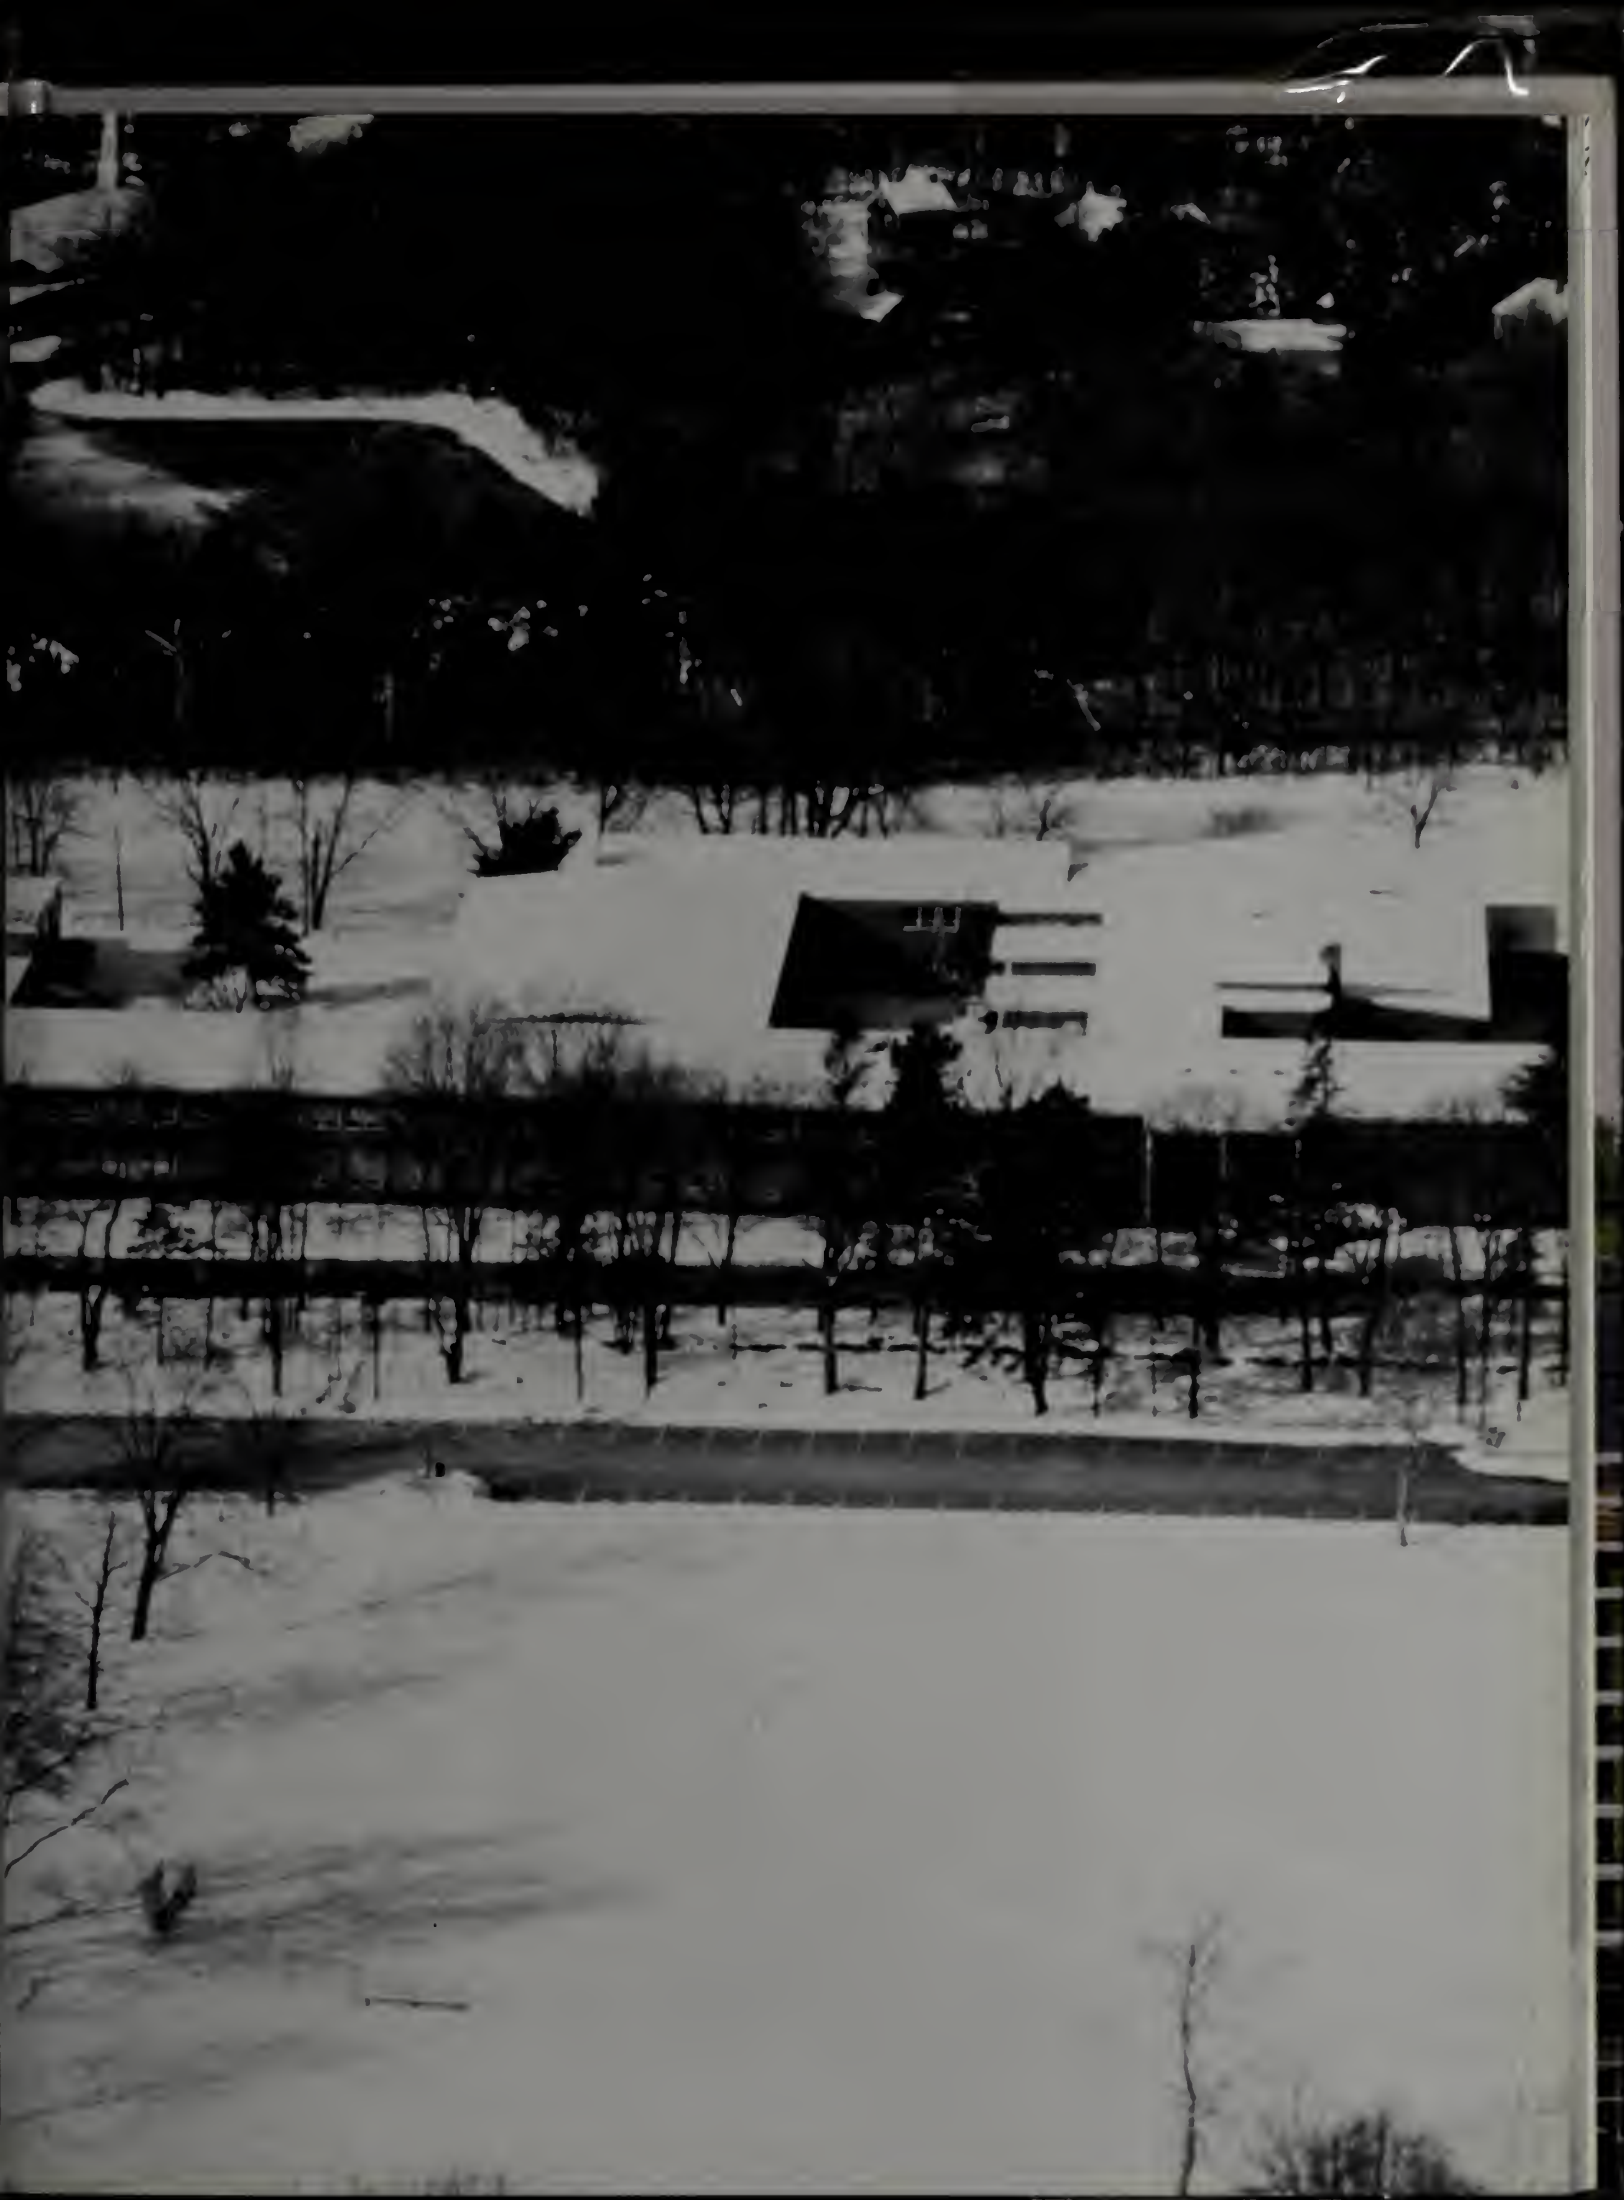

ON'T WORRY, BE HAPPY. Betsy Carlton takes me out to give us a pretty smile. What are you smiling about? It's the beginning of another day filled with madines, lectures, and hours of homework. Oh, I know, you're a senior!

FREE RIDE. Getting a free lift to nowhere in particular, Michael McGarry is quite the lady's man. With Kristen Colliton, Terri Franks, Betsy Carlton, Caroline Busch, Katy Doherty, Rachael Berkowitz and Mandy Jannis.

Thanks, Bayne for the rides, the speed limit, and our parallel lives. Thanks Chris Midgett for always making me laugh and for the poem. Mark, you and I are the Mastermind masters, and thanks for doing impressions that make me laugh forever. John, I hope that one day you will realize that my real name is not Mary. Wasn't the Big Bad Wolf wild?! Also, thanks to Mindy and Michelle for being my early morning friends. Thank you Katie McBride for being such a good person. Thank you Ellis Burks for being such an awesome baseball player, and for May 20th. A special thanks to Parker Brothers, the makers of PIT!, the BEST game ever invented. I also want to thank the few excellent teachers I had at Bedford High School for teaching me so much: Mrs. Rainis for making me love the French language. Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Anderson for giving me confidence and always assuring me I was good when I thought I was terrible, Mrs. Donovan, Mr. Low for doing so much and giving me many great opportunities. Mr. Palmer, Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Flynn, Mr. Huff, and Mr. Spinoso. And last but not least, I would like to thank my wonderful family Mom and Dad, Jenny, Bill, Mary, Sally, Richard, Emily, Christine, and David for everything they've done for me. Especially my mother for being my friend and helping me so much throughout the past four years.

Future Goals: My most important goal is to one day meet Ellis Burks. I want to get a job at Fenway Park and to see the Red Sox win a World Series pennant in person. I want to finally get my father to buy Miracle Ear. I plan to go to college and then get married to a man who wears a baseball cap, have many children and be happy and healthy all my life. I would also love to travel around the world and live in many more places.

Thanks To: To everyone that made my high school experience what it was. Especially, the "Group" - you know who you are - I love you guys! Thanks to Mary and Krystin for some of my best times in high school and especially for the summer of '92 ("Hi, I go to UMass.") To Krystin for never letting me forget the "Dukes of Hazard," for liking the beach as much as I do, for listening to WXLO with me when nobody else would, and for showing me the art of flirting - every day of your life. To Mary for being a great friend, for being the best listener, for giving advice about the opposite sex, for trading stickers with me in the 3rd grade, and for "What the hell, you only live once." To Steph for showing me that emotions are an important part of life - whether it's laughing or crying, and for always being there to discuss our various relationships/obsessions. To Meg for some wonderful memories, our closeness - Remember when we knew what the other was going to say before it was said?, for always being willing to share your knowledge without expecting anything in return, for the hot guys page, and for our nicknames - "Ot" is off?...not! To Cait for never being afraid to try something new - especially when you probably think I've lost my mind. To Laurie for having someone to look up to and for always having something meaningful to say - even though it's sometimes only "Th." To Kim for always acting on what you believe in, for being your own person, and for your incredible laugh. To Cheri for being an incredible friend and someone I can talk to, for Junior year - it's not the same without you!! for hanging out at the infamous park, for meeting the man in the stealth with me. -B.C. here we come (Is it really possible?) To Joe for being a fun prom date, the endless hours on the phone, and for teaching me the real meaning of the phrase, "What's up?" To Rick for being a good friend during 9th and 10th grades. To Michelle - for everything - the fun, the dances, the concerts, the wild phone conversations, introducing me to the Wakelield men, and especially for introducing me to the rest of the world (B.B.C., Rever Beach, Dot, etc.) - love ya, let's always keep in touch. To Dave for never letting me forget the old days and beating me in the 5th grade checker tournament - good luck in whatever you do! To Alex for constantly making me laugh, especially when no one else could, for caring, and for being a good friend. To Chris for the use of your house. To Dave for being unique and not caring about what anyone else thinks. To Lon and Scott K. for always being so friendly. To Jane, Andrea, and Julie - I'm glad I got the chance to meet you. You're great people. To Jeramy for making Peer Leadership fun, but take off that hat - you have great hair! To Matt W. for always saying "Hi." Special thanks to the survivors of Youth Ministry and Chris Manning - you do so much for us without expecting anything in return - thanks! To the Davidson's crew (what's left of it) - it's been real. To Heather for keeping me sane at work - I'm glad I got to know you again. Especially to Carrie for being an excellent friend, for always being happy, and for sticking out Analysis with me. Good luck next year - keep smilin'! To Anita for taking that long walk with me in Braintree. To Jane C. for being my friend for 13 years - always remember the empty bottle, the 4th grade talent show, and the "strike." To Maryann and the rest of my adopted "second family" - thanks for accepting me into a place where I never even dreamed of fitting in - it means a lot! To Dad for all of your guidance and Bob for the "blind-date." To Mom and Dad for always supporting me in whatever I want to do. Mom, I know we don't always get along, but I do realize that you're there for me, and I love you for that. To my grandparents - you've done so much for me - I don't know how I could possibly thank you enough. Thanks to the rest of my family for spoiling me rotten, and especially to Tom Ricci for setting up my swing set and everything else you did for me while I was growing up. To Aliisa, Chris, and Little Ricci #3 - you're the best little cousins a girl could ask for. To Mrs. Anderson for keeping my love for music alive and for giving me the experience of having a teacher who really cares. To Mike for the summer of '92, for always putting a smile on my face, for your family always challenging our relationship, for the massage (that's definitely the way to drive), for the 15-minute updates, and for "Wonderful Tonight." To everyone I've mentioned and to the rest of the class of '93 - I wish you all luck in the future.

Future Goals: To have a great college experience, to keep in touch with the people who mean the most to me, to meet the man of my dreams and fall in love, and although Bedford's given me a lot - to see what life on the outside is really like!

Thanks To: My family for being there when I needed you. Mom, thanks for playing UNO with me everyday for three months at CHOP, not disowning me after the javelin crutch throw (I deliberately missed), chauffeuring me everywhere, and especially, thank you for being my friend. Dad, thanks for teaching me how to ride a bicycle and drive a car. I'm sorry for embarrassing you at Grease when I danced in the aisles. At college I'll miss hearing you ask, "What's that, babe?" Timothy...I mean Tiffany, thank you for putting up with me all these years. Enjoy being an only child for a while. Now, go clean your room. Thank you Dr. Watts, Dr. Deeney ("My Kennedys hurt: Joe, Jack, and Bobby." Too much morphine??), and Dr. Zaleske. Well, Jane, if you're reading this, we finally did it! Remember working on layout until 1 a.m.? There's NO WAY I'm doing yearbook in college! Thanks for commiserating with me in math and for being such an enthusiastic Pit player. Good luck in your quest to meet Ellis Burks. Jill, the yearbook would never have been completed without your help. Thanks for being so supportive while I was recuperating. Thanks, Alex, for your jokes, and Erin, your friendship has meant a lot to me for the past six years. Rita, Misty, Laurie, Meg, and Stephanie, I'll miss all the fun we've had the past few years. Thank you, Marco and Laura, for being my best friends.

Thanks to: To Mom for always being there and always believing in me, for being not just my mother, but my friend. I love you very much. Thank you Dad. Even though we don't always agree, I know that you have always wanted the best for me and I love you with all my heart. To Fred, for watching out for me and teaching me not to take life too seriously. To Jim, for always being there and for teaching me to not only be open-minded but to be my own person. To Bill for taking care of me and always trying to guide me in the right direction. I love you all. To Katy and Mandy, my two very best friends, I do even know where to begin. Mandy you always know exactly what I'm going to say before I even open my mouth. You've always been there for me and supported me. We've shared so many memories and so many good times. I could have never made it through high school without you. Katy, my oldest friend, thank you for all the time we spent at our talking spot. I don't know what I would have done without you. You were always there for me and you always knew how to make me laugh when something was wrong. You two are so special; you really deserve to get everything you want out of life. I want you to know that no matter how far apart we are that I love you and I'll always be here for you. To Ashley for all of our talks, for letting me get lost on base, for sharing my stories, for never putting up with anyone's attitude and being a real friend. I'll miss you when you leave. Rachel for being my early childhood buddy, for not knowing where your locker is either, for never getting my jokes and for always being there to listen. To Terri for being friendly and never taking sides. Krysten for always laughing. Michelle for sharing late night stories. Betsy for being such a true friend all of these years. You'll always mean a lot to me. Jen Hanson, for the shower at times and all the other good times. I hope everything works out for you. Jenn Hansen, for always being my cheerleader, buddy ESPN Here we come! John G. We've been through so much together. I can't imagine High School without you. Thank you for always being there for me. You are always the one person I can always talk to. You mean a lot to me. You'll always be my best friend. David Lord, for the talks, for being Mr. Loverman, for standing by me and being such a good friend. David Boffa, for letting me tell you in, for losing my gold penny, for making me laugh and for letting me be by you cuthy. David V. for making me buy the "Funnel" and for always making me laugh. Mike for being rainman for the 99's, for all our talks junior year for laughing at my jokes and for being the nicest guy in the world. Matt, for being Bike, for the scavenger hunt, for letting me harass you in lab. Mike, for letting me play with your hair, for being my lab partner, and for being the Oldest McGlanny. Matt K (Tree) for our antics in physics for falling out of the tree, and for your fashion statements at Tim's. Chip, the Hockey Games, for being "one of the girls" and for being a real friend. Todd, for having a nice car, for being in my dreams, and the outfit you wore Tim's. John M, for sledding, for all the talks, and for being such a good friend. Colin for loving my lasagne. Terri, for Cape Fear, for late night stories and for being such a good friend. Alex for English Junior year for all the homeroc talks, and for always knowing how to make me laugh. Steve (Peter) for knowing it was a worm, and for being in Bobee. Brian for being on sexy man, for always sweating me, and for being one of the nicest guys I know. M. Boutin for ghost stories, for getting us lost at an anatomy laboratory, for making me carry your books, and for the "P" game. Tony for always letting me be Carolanne. Pablo (Pablo) for loving Espanol, for our heated romance, for the hour long ride home through Burlington. To Ada for being my best friend, Chris for being Vanilla, for the strawberry O's for the seclusive's Junior year. Tim for the good times. Jessaman. Kim T. for the talks in Photo

Why and for being my Cheerleading Buddy. Sarah R. for my mom's. Sara Brown for running into a tree on Thanksgiving. For liking my Shanangan's joke. and for being a cheering buddy. Linda for all of our good times. I'll miss you. Good luck next year. To all the cheerleaders; Jessica for never dropping me and for being "The Man". Jaqui, for always being in the back. Julie P. Courtney. Mindy. Keri "the Mug" Christine V. Christine P., Hillary, Mellisa. Colleen. Amy, "Ma-me", Betty. Lynn. Adelle, and Tanya- you guys are the greatest! To Cyndi D. for being friendly and for the time we spent cheering together. To the Doherty family and the Jannis family for all the room board. And a special thanks to Geoff, for always being there for me, for putting up with my fidgetiness, and for always making me laugh. You mean a lot to me. I'll never regret the times we shared.

Future Goals: To become as good as Mandy at Bedtime storytelling, to buy Matt K. infamous party outfit, to form singing trio with Katy and Ashley. Darrell Russell for the dollar rides home. All of the cool junior chicks! Sandra Johnson for being a business buddy. Beth Mara for being Venuti's wife and a nice person. Kristen for being a cool new girl. The cool sophomore girls and guys, and the cool freshmen. Mandy for being a close friend - thanks for the memories. I'll miss you! Katy for being Nancy Drew, for your baby rags, for the talks, and I know I'm not always nice, so thanks for being understanding. Caroline, special thanks to you for making my senior year that much better, for understanding and putting up with me: I'm sorry it took so long for us to get together, but I'm glad we finally did even though I don't show it much. I care about you and I hope that this is one of my long lasting relationships! My family: My mom, thanks for teaching me values and responsibility and for being there when I needed you. I know I'm a jerk sometimes, and it doesn't always seem like I love you, but I do. Dad, thanks for all the great Sundays, for the camping trips, and for being my biggest baseball fan. Even though you'll probably never see this, I love you, too. Hara thanks for being a great stepfather, for hitting fly balls me out back, for teaching me how to fish, and for taking any crap from me. Wendy for being there when I needed to yell at somebody, but you're my sister and I supposed to do that! Grammy, thanks for being a great grandmother. I don't know what I'd do without you. Jeff for being a great guy and someone I can talk sports with and Uncle Jim and Jaye, for being the best aunt and uncle a guy could ask for!

Future Goals: Maybe go to college, to go to Police Academy, and to become a Bedford police officer. To not lose track of my friends, to visit them all in college and attend all their weddings. To marry a beautiful woman, to have one or two boys and to teach them every sport I know, so that they can make it big and support me when I'm old, and also to live in Bedford for the rest of my life.

The football team: Farmer (and his pal Will Vinny (for being the greatest), Gallant (Hardie) who should be on the team. Keoni, Ginn, Ciccone (for love to Jane), Chip for being so clean and Collin. The basketball team: Cam, Jared, and Tony. O.K., now Berko believing I got a rash from Peanuts. Franks and Pavlas calling me "Chester." Doherty and Busch "Peter!" Cole (that little Elf), Jannis, EPP (U2) and Darris for some interesting field hockey games. Hey Ro, keep looking those tan parts. Gotta thank some underclassmen. Carol thanks for the closet, for actually liking the Brady Bunch and the deep philosophical conversations. Thanks to the crew (members know who they are and are proud of Michelle, Jen, Danielle, and the rest, thanks, guys. Tom, hey thanks for the hat and the house, the group who is most comfortable leaving the school to the "Cosby Kids" - they know who they are. Hey! Hey! Hey! Thanks to the people who ever graduated, those who haven't, and anybody in any class with me and anybody who has ever ughed at me for any circumstance. Some people I admire deserve credit: Joe Kleine, Andy Benes, anybody whose music I've ever listened to and the Amazing Spider-Man. I'd also like to thank, in no particular order: Mr. Maxwell, Ms. Lohrum, my silk underwear, anybody who has ever given me a job. Mr. Buckley, Mr. Palmer, Cap'n Crunch, Mr. Reynolds, and Nike because Mowabbs are the greatest.

Future Goals: To go to school in Arizona with Mike McGarry and Sean Christie and go to Mexico every weekend, keep all my hair, direct a movie that T.P. will star in. Learn to Waterski, Scuba Dive, and Surf just so I can wear a wetsuit. Jump out of a plane, bungee jump, play guitar with Eddie Van Halen, learn to play guitar, buy guitar. Perform at the Apollo with Sean, own a Subaru, that Colt .45 shirt, and season tickets for the CBA team that T.P. is on. Get married, naked, underwater. Be very wealthy and live with my wife (maybe) who will do all my work and come back to BHS and attend basketball games with Kelly "mike" Elias, and definitely never lose track of my friends.

Thanks To: thanks to everyone that was there when I had my ups and downs, who made me who I am now. Thanks to my mom for being the sweetest person in the world, my dad for giving me the inspiration to be the best, Chi-Sun or just being there when I needed a smile on my face. Chiming, Elaine for the helpful advice, Kim for all the laughs, but most of all, just being a close and sweet friend that I can count on. Meg for being so easy to talk to and a great friend. Thanks to all the Olympic Training Center People. Even though we've had our share of arguments, we're still the best of friends; Sean for the good memories. Tom for listening to all my stories even though I can be a little boring. Mark in Virginia for the hear-to-heart talks; the gymnast Taekwondo figure skaters for making my stay in Colorado better. To Adam, Andrea, Brian, Cait, Cheri, Erin, Jane, Jen, Laurie, Shannon, Stephanie, and Teri for all the fun. Hideya and Hiroko for being so nice to me. Nana for being my little "sis," Vicky for all the letters. Thanks to all my Table Tennis friends (Lan, Li, Jia, Eric, Kristey, etc...) for having such a good time at tournaments. Everyone else that I missed, thanks, too. All the people that are really special to me. I love you. It's scary to think that we're leaving and starting new again, so best of luck in the future. I hope to see you guys again. Smile and be happy. I'll miss you very much.

Future Goals: To make the Olympics in '96, for this world to be safe, to always be happy and the people I care about will be happy, too, and to find someone that I can spend the rest of my life with.

Thanks to: I would like to give thanks to all the people who helped me get through these four long years. I moved Bedford before my freshman year. Since that time people have been very kind. These past four years have been the best school years I have had. I'd like to thank each everyone individually, but I can long use 200 words like to thank the kids at the lunch table, the kids in all classes, and especially myself. I'd also like to thank I Cordes for translating teacher talk into something I can understand.

Future Goals. My future goals are to become a very I Architect. To get married and have kids. The most important goal I have is to go to as many parties as I can before I start college.

Thanks To: Josh C. - There's so much for me to thank you for, but thanks for always being there for me, listening to me, putting up with me, and for being a true friend. I love you, and you're the greatest. Don't ever forget our trip to Boston, liking me in 10th grade. 36, setting me up with "things I need," trading our "stories," fried grapes, watching Gremlins II, pulling your hair out. And I know we'll never lose touch, so I'll have many years to thank you. And thanks to Jen (on) for being my only friend when I first moved to Bedford. We've been through a lot together, and I'll always be here for you. You have some "amazing" stories, and ones bigger than the other, thanks for beating me up, thanks for being so honest and for always being yourself. Thanks for not being jealous because I'm better than you at sports. "Well I'm smarter!" I'm pretty good at those phone conversations, huh? ESP, thanks for being a best friend my whole life. I love ya! And of course, thanks to Jen (en). It's about time we became friends, and you're a good one, too. Thanks for all the countless times you've made me laugh. Thanks for being my "sister," thanks for giving me bad habits, for being my excuse and writing them, too! Thanks for making me feel like a RETARD, thanks for my 1st - you know, thanks for partying with me at the Jr. Prom and dragging me out of the bathroom, thanks for always calling me "Mustang Sally" and finally thanks for putting up with me! Special thanks to my mom (Mickey). We've been through a lot, but I love you and always will. Thank for thinking of me and usually understanding. You're the best and you deserve the best. Thanks to my brother Kevin and for giving me many jokes to crack! Thanks Bedford Gramme. You know I love you and appreciate you've done for me. Also thanks to Calit, Gramme Eml, aunt Moe and Mindy and Jenny. I love you all! Thanks to Chip for ripping your pants on my fence and for your friend Phil! Thanks to Adam - Buddy #1, Mike B., Matt J.C., John G., Terri C., Colon for letting me get underwe at my house, Phil and all of T.B.B. for the best times ever. Thanks to D. Boffa for faithfully calling me everyday at my hopeful prom date, and for letting me lick your face. Thanks to J. Mara for being so sweet, for those sick nois behind me in chem. Geoff C. for playing with me when I was little. R. Wakeham for being so friendly to me in 8th grade. Steve C. and Paul S. - the most faithful field hockey player ever! Thanks to Terri (T) for the B⁵ game. Ban J. and for being the sweetest, funniest person. Thanks Kristen (Motel 6) and Michelle P. for the whooping cough. - I really didn't know I was on the wrong side of the road. Steph D., Mandy, Mary - the whole F.H. group. You made it so much fun. Thanks to Sarah Ro. - "Just go - I go with you." Thanks to Sara Borshay for making me laugh. Thanks to Lou (Speedboat), Nat, Daynion, Eric C. Timmy - you guys are so sweet. Also Eddy Franks, Dave Hunt - two of the sweetest guys in town. S. Clark playing guitar to me over the phone. Rachael for always being on my side. Thanks to: Jo, Brian A., Todd, Melis, Matt K., Tony J. (for loving me), Dave Lord (my little cutie), McGarrys, M. McInnis, Darnell, Shawn S., Em D. Venuti, Chris Merrill (for summer '91) and our all school trips. Matt Gallant for giving me a reason to go to Latin class, and anyone else I forgot for making the years so fun. And a very special thanks to the H. family. You're like my second family, and you've done so much to help me. You've made me feel so welcome and I can't thank you all enough. Thanks to Jen, MB I for those great lunches and meals - Mr. H for expecting me for dinner and in by 12 and Matt for teaching me how to drive in the morning and for just hanging out with me. Thanks to Dan Hunt. So much to thank you for. For letting me sleep, our trip, putting up with my moods, not letting me fight, and for your sincere kindness. It stuns me, Love ya - just stay yourself and keep going to church. Also, thanks to Ms. Lohrum - you're the best counselor - you've helped me a ton. Thanks to MB G. for the rides to camp and all your help and kindness. Thanks to Charlie for all the good times. So much to say, but I'm glad we're friends. You're always there when I need you and that's so good to know. I'd write another four pages if I could, and I know you know that. And, finally - thank to Steph M. for finally letting it go.

Future Goals: After seeing Josh C. graduate, I'm going to Las Vegas to marry an Elvis impersonator. Then, I'll become a famous writer and hopefully own stock in Chapstick and Jello.

Thanks To: First of all, my family, including all my great aunts, uncles, cousins, and grandmothers, but especially Mom and Dad for giving me all the love and support I could ever have asked for, and Katie for being the best little sister I could have. (Don't worry, the youngest always turns out the toughest!) Thanks to all of the teachers that have ever supported me, especially Mrs. Hoyt, Mrs. Rainis, Mr. Huff, Mr. Low, Mrs. Krueger, Mr. McCarthy, and of course Anthony Pilla. Thanks to all my closest friends: Geoff for being my best friend all those years and for the lemonade stand, Alex for being around in kindergarten, and for all the jokes and insults we've made about everything possible. Mark for imitations, craziness, and being one of the friendliest guys I know; Matt for wrong humor, your biting satire and your incredible insight, and Dave for being the Love god, putting up with all of my crap, and being a great friend. Dave and Matt-You guys are incredible! The world will never forget "The Gardener's Tale." Thanks also to everybody else: Viet for your strong opinions and humor; Alan and Jason for the beach, Ultimate Frisbee, and a terrific summer; Laurie and Brian for teacher painting at 10:45; Stephanie and Meg for just being around and being friendly for 12 years. Dave Gersh for those great T-shirts, Chris for the disposable Heroes, Kristin (the 3rd viola will have his revenge!) Drobo a great Italian meal. Julie for two croissants. Betsy for being my wife for a few months, Ginn for stroking his beard, Vinny for Vinny-facts, Jane for being crazy and loving the box and lastly Boffa for a plate of lasagna. Thanks to the whole Cross-Country Crew, past but especially present. Barry you've been an inspiration and a friend. Thank you. Cait-keep running, you're gonna be awesome. Thanks to God Robinson and Tony. Good luck to the whole team-Aaron, Gilbert, Naveen, Sewon, Matt, Mike, and everyone else. Oh yeah, thanks to Crouton and the Yungwins, for general craziness, and Matt Wilson-I made you who you are! Thanks to Heath for Ullman fun. Thanks to past years seniors- Andria for two great proms/semiformal, Katie H. for her first concert and a great prom, Tara Lebbie, Yung-hsin and Robespierre for concerts and leeches. B. Sparrow for craziness, Josh Keroes for more of the same. Finally thanks to anybody I will get to know and wish I could have thanked this year, and anybody I forget. sorry. Put your name here _____.

Future Goals: To get out of high school and get into a great college. Right now I want to become a math teacher-we'll see what happens. To go skydiving some time in my life. To never go to an early-morning orchestra class again after high school. To have an incredible life. Good luck to everyone in this school. I'm outta here.

Thanks To: Michelle, for being such a great friend even through the bad times. Remember 6th grade "I got his nickel," all the good times we had together at Kristen's and Rachael's. Field Hockey was a blast (I really like your eyes). Getting an ice cream at Baskin Robbins with my lovely purple socks. I'm really going to miss you. I love you, thanks for everything - don't ever change! Good luck in college. Kristen, you're a great friend. Thanks for the good times we had together. When we called Emma "what's your name penelope" that's a classic. Don't forget the porta-potty! I really want to thank you for making me laugh at you when we slept over at Rachael's. "I'm really cold - well put your clothes back on." I also want to thank you for being as loud as me and always getting yelled at together. Thanks for everything - you're a great friend - don't ever change. Good luck in life! "Where's volleyball material?" Rachael, thank you for everything. You're a great friend to talk to. All those early in the morning welcomes were great, I'll get you one of these days. For our little get togethers (Kristen's out of control). Of course, accounting class - that was great. "Rachael, turn around." Thank you for being a great listener! Ashley, Those great times shopping on Saturday afternoons. Thanks for talking me to the BX. All those great talks on the telephone. Don't ever change, you're a great girl. Good luck in school! Mandy, for all those chats during Field Hockey. Polly Poperline socks, Bruins games (shoots and scores) for all the great times we had together. Caroline, for inventing girl bonding night, for being such a nice person, for always acting abnormal. Don't ever change! Katy, for all the jokes that you come up with, for being such a partier, and of course for waking me up at 3 in the morning with that damn flashlight. Shay, for the great times during Field Hockey camp, sneaking out of our rooms, that was a riot. "She's wrapping arm." You're a great person - don't ever change. Hang in there, through good times and bad times. Good luck in life! Jen Hansen, for being such a friendly girl - don't ever change. Also, don't forget spying on Cam Neely. "Let's climb the fence." Jen Hansen, for being such a wise guy with those jokes of yours. Mary, for the great rides on the truck, VA parking lot. Stephanie, for that great laugh of yours. Darrell, for all our little chats, for beating up Jimmy and of course gym class. "Hit the ball." Alexis, for hanging out with me during unassigned period, and for being a great friend. Lauren, for only coming to school to see me. Betsy, for the great talks at lunch. Kristen Celeste, for sitting in the front seat and "I burnt my tongue." Krystin Carpenter, for being so friendly and always laughing at my jokes. Geoff, for always supporting the Field Hockey team with the diet coke. Mark, for being such a gentleman, holding doors for me. Brian, for acting like Jimmy. Jimmy D., for all those sexual comments. Matt, for always making me laugh. Mike, for always having droopy draws. David L., for always beating me up. David V., for trying to talk just like me. Keoni, for always complimenting me. Hope you're not sore. David B., for those great talks, those nice comments, and for calling me Cam Neely. You're a great guy - don't ever change. John M., for calling me stickshift. John G., for calling me Frankzie. Chip, for watching out for me, you're a great friend - don't ever change. Adam, for always having an attitude if I don't say hi. Mike B., for letting me corrupt your little brother. Colin, for always teasing me about being too loud. Todd A., for all the nice comments (not). Matt K., for being such a weirdo and a great prom date. Steve, for letting me call you Chester. Paul, for always harassing me. Cameron, for always making my classes so exciting. Thanks to the junior class. Sara B., for being my babe, accounting class was fun "get a clue," for always pinching my seaky fat, and most of all, for being such a sweetie - don't ever change. Good luck next year. I'll miss you. Any S., for always saying hi to me every time you see me and for field hockey chats. Good luck next year. Ro, for being so friendly. "Don't let 'em have it" and also for the great time at T.L.'s house. Eppler, for jigging, "Excuse ma," being a U2 lover and don't ever forget our handstands. Beth, for the great trips to Papa Gino's and Bedford Farms. Linda, for always laughing at my jokes. Cindy, for always brightening my day. Erin S., for always taking me seriously. Sara B., for the great dancing to Elvis music. Jessamyn, for being such a cool person, for coming out with us, our little chats, and of course our little laughs. Chrism, for being the nicest guy I know and for always making me laugh. Matt G., for always being the Stud man with the bandana. To the Field Hockey team of 1992 especially Jen B., Michelle C., and Danielle for always giggling. Mrs. Jordan and Ms. Savarino, thanks for everything. Thanks for your time and support - it really helped me out. I'm really going to miss you guys, thanks again Ms. Sab. Good luck with the little one. Mr. Maxwell, thanks for being the best English teacher. Mr. Cacciola for being the best trainer anyone could ask for. Most of all, I would like to thank my family. Mom, for putting up with me. I love you. I couldn't have done it without your support. George, for always making me laugh during dinner time with your funny jokes. Ed, for being such a great brother even if it means picking on me. Dad, I really would like to thank you for being such a great dad even though you are a long distance away. I always felt that support came from you. Thank you very much. I love you very much. Don't ever forget it. Gwen, thanks for being the best girlfriend my father could ever ask for. Janet, for being such a great Auntie. Grandpa, for being a super grandfather. I love you all. Thanks again.

Future Goals: To graduate from college, open my own day care center, marry a professional hockey player (Cam Neely), have eight healthy kids, and to keep in touch with all my close friends.

I would like to thank some teachers: Mrs. Rainis; Mr. Spinoso; The School's Administration; Mr. Sabourin; Mr. Lord, Mr. Dooley, and Dr. Morse, for interesting me in television production, and indirectly making me decide upon my career; Mr. Lord for just being Mr. Lord; The Student Office ladies for putting up with me, recycling, and all of the letters, memos, and pages which I receive. I would especially like to thank Mr. Barbas for making Wind Ensemble, Jazz Band, and Marching Band what it is. I want to thank any past or present Band members for making Band a truly grand experience. To anyone who has ever supported or helped my recycling program: Thanks a ton(s)! I'm really not sure how much we have collected. Thank you to any Tele-media members, especially some past ones. What a strange and exciting experience it's been. B. Sparrow and Chris Coates, you are the voices of Television. Is that the Bourne Bridge? Brian Fehlau, well 15 plus years just about says it all. Thanks for being there, Bard's Tale, plays, fights, games, Band, broken hands, parties, and all kinds of other great and interesting things which have happened in my life. Thanks to all of the Fehlau's for being like a second family for a large portion of my life. Chris Coates, you are a changed man. From the little, quiet, band member when I met you, to... well a very different person indeed. Thanks for, Band, Driving around, strange comments and retorts, HI, McDonald's. Your Silver Sax, car washes, just being you, lots of other stuff. Brian Drohan, you are of course one of the most frank people I know. I have had a great time with you during these four years. Do you remember: Origami, Monty Python, and Monty Python in Ms. Giddis' class, various unspeakable experiences; driving; Led Zeppelin; Your amazing mixes; of course, many other bizarre things. Does anyone really like grammar? Thaks To: God, for helping me get this far. Mom, for your unconditional love that I need and feel for you in return. But often I have a hard time saying it and showing it. My sister, Kristine, as we grow older we seem to be growing closer all the time. I love you very much, and I'll always be here for you. My big brother, Michael, little sisters aren't always gonna be perfect, but they are eventually gonna grow up, and we won't be so little anymore. Try to understand that - I love you. Grammy, you are a good friend to me. I respect, love, and thank you very much. Rara, words have never been many, but fortunately love has. I love you. To Martin, Shelley, Tim, and Dan. You all have always been there for me, and I don't know how I'll ever thank you. You all mean so much to me and I love you very much. Uncle Pat for the strength you've displayed to me within the past year. Whether you realize it or not, your strength has inspired me in so many ways. I thank and I love you. Auntie, I love you, I miss you and may God take good care of you. David Boffa, whether you think so or not, our class and you do mean a lot to me. True friends always will!! I love you, baby. David Lord for never thinking about himself and for taking care of me no matter what you had to put on the line to do so. I appreciate you, and I love you. David Venuti for always being you. To Matthew McGarry for singing "Forever My Lady" to me at the Jr. Prom. Hey Mark, "we got Pilla." Mike McGarry for being my boyfriend about 30 different times in junior high, and for being "Lickey." Matt Kyvelos for being the only Greek tree climber I know. Bryan Albonesi for being the best "Buddy" anyone could ask for. To John Mara for being so strong, and for always being such a sweetheart, but most of all for booting Dinero! Now to THE LADIES: Rachael, for being the prettiest pretty I know. To Kristen for being the biggest GEEK I know. Michelle, for listening to all my little stories. Ashley, for not taking any crap from anyone, but still found time to be a sweetheart to me. Terri for being the happiest person I know. To Caroline for ... well, what exactly happened at Tim Likosky's house? I can't quite remember. But does the word SHOWER mean anything to you? Love you honey. Amanda, you've always been so kind to me, yet I've never completely let you in. I'm sorry, but I'm also grateful. Thanks, girls. I'll never forget any of you. I wish you all the best, and God willing, we'll all be O.K. I think that if you're lucky in life, you'll meet the most unique, real people out there. These people are sure about themselves. They're original people with original personalities. They don't belong to any specific clique - they belong to themselves. Carla Inferrera, Keoni Monte, Rob Wakeham, Sarah Ro, Bryant Chisholm, Sandra Johnsen, and Lori Malymeik are those people. You all have my utmost respect. Good luck and God bless. I've also had some real teachers at this high school who've definitely made a big impact on my life. These teachers have real personalities, they teach because they care, not just for a paycheck. Thank you Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Reynolds, Mrs. Donovan, Mrs. Gullage, Mrs. Bosak, Mrs. Mitchell, and Mrs. Pellegrini. To Geoff Chase (Black), I'm not very good at telling people the type of feelings that I feel for you. You are very special to me, you are my closest and best male friend (both you and Jason), I could ever ask for. I love you very much Geoff. I just have one question though, can you keep a secret? TO both the girls' basketball and softball teams, no matter what happens to me in the next year, you should all know that you helped to make that happen. Thank you, I won't let you down! To Chris Midget for being a great artist and an even better friend. Eileen Hartwell, work hard, don't take crap from anyone and be the best you can be. Jimmy, Yaman! Lisa Thomas, take care little girl. I'm always here for you. Rob for being my FRIEND. Jennifer Hansen, not many people can go through life and get a chance to go to school with someone with the same name as you. We're lucky though, people have an easy way of telling us apart because I wash my kooch. I love you Jenny. Matthew (BIC), we've come a long way, baby. We've been together forever, literally forever, and we're going places too, baby. Not bad for two kids from the Gardens, huh? Chris Farmer for being the absolute funniest person I know, and you'll never know what I had in my purse. To the entire Chisholm family for always being so kind. To my coaches, Dave Wilson and Maureen Sullivan, I won't let you down. Thank you so much for teaching me to be the best I can be. To Shay, Darrell, and Katy: my life has changed a loth, and I'm still adjusting. I know it's an adjustment for our friendship, too. I miss not being able to spend as much time with you as I'd like, and I hope you don't think that our friendship isn't as important to me anymore. I care about you very much. Even though our friendship may change in some ways, my feelings for you all never will! Donna, where do I begin? I never thought we'd be as close as we are now. Let's forget about the past and concentrate on today. We have great clothes, great shoes, and crazy fun! Wanna go to Lowell? Sure! No, he didn't. Well, you be good and remember I love you. Now to Jason, my best friend and boyfriend: You've given me more than I could ever ask of anyone. You've given me respect, honesty, and most of all, you've given me your heart and soul. You make me so proud of everything we do. We both know that we're going places. It's just a matter of time, and that's something we have plenty of. I will always be here to support you, listen to you, and love you with all my heart. Thank you to anybody and everybody I may have forgotten at the moment. It's only at the moment, though, NONE of you will be forgotten!

Future Goals: To be happy!

Laurie for "TH!" and being such a wonderful friend all these years. Meg, for liking younger guys, being a slave with me, sharing my love for Nacho and Eneko, all those afternoons at Wedgewood, and finally appreciating older guys (Bates soccer!) Mary for "freshmen lunches," making my life more exciting with your driving, always making me smile, and being so much fun. Kim for laughing with me all the time, not caring what others think, soccer, and "Pop me!" Jen and Krystin for being great friends and enlivening my Saturday nights. Jane Chui for being almost as good as me in ping-pong, always asking if you look okay, and letting me and Kim laugh with (at) you. Alex B., Dave G., Dave H., Matt R., Mark M., John G., Eric B., D.W., Jane A., Julie S., Rita P., Misty U., Carrie G., Andrea B., Katie M., Jill F., and Erin S. for sharing good times and bad times and laughing with me. Barb and Katie for sharing so much with me (I'll see ya tomorrow!) and skipping the meet for Harvard Square. Monica for driving me everywhere - "Ave. Puella!" Kristen L. for the guinea-pig torturing days and suffering through Hunt with me. Bri and Uli for being the best German sisters I never had. Mike E. for running with me and always screwing up the entire workout. Barry D., Steve R., Naveen W., Aaron R., and the whole cross-country team for being so awesome and accepting me so well. Mr. Gollis for all the hours in your office and being the best story-teller ever. Mrs. Ramis, Mrs. McCarthy, Mr. Hunt, Mrs. Donovan, Mr. Spinosa, and Mr. McCarthy for inspiring me with your teaching. To those I forgot and those I mentioned - good luck and I love you all!!

Future Goals: To laugh as loud as Kim S. one day, to run until my dying day, to see Laurie S. in a Broadway play, to travel the world by bike or by foot, to love and learn in college, to fall truly, madly, deeply in love, to get a N.Y.C. condo with Steph D. and sip cappuccino, join the peace corps and help all I can, and most of all to have fun and be happy in all that I do!

Thanks To: My parents, for having me, loving me, supporting me, getting used to me, and for always being there. To Mike for being the best brother, and for putting up with the piano. To my grandparents for the wonderful vacations we've had, and for the millions of other things you've done for me in the past (thanks for the great sandwiches!) Together, you are the best family anyone could ever ask for. To Geoff C. for dropping a cement block on my head and for being my best friend when I was five. To Bryan A., for horse and whiffleball (remember 16-0 in the first inning?) and all the great times we've had over the years. To Darren F. (helloooooo!) for being on my team when we beat Bryan A. 16-0, for horse, red light-green light, Tecmo, Major League Baseball (you know I told you I was going to walk you!), next shot wins. When You're Young (ughh!), for everything else we did together, and for being a great friend. To Jen Anderson, for always letting me play first violin in the pit. To Jen, Jacqui, Tara, Debbie (what a Spanish project!), and Andria (I finally signed it!) for finding something special in my muffins. To Jen B. for coming in second and letting me win the magnetic backgammon set. To Jill, for talking to me for so long on the phone in middle school. To Adam for telling me about Amy, and for being pretty good at tennis (just kidding!) To John G., for making me think of Cheers (you act like Sam Malone). To Steph, Jane, M. (Megsy), Cait, and Laurie for being such great friends over the years. I have wonderful memories of you guys that I will never forget. To Dave G. for recycling, and to Chris C. for helping me in music theory. To Mark M., for making me want to come to school every day...I can't think at you without laughing. You've been a great friend for long time. You know our play would have been great. I work the wood until it is smooth, and then I oil it until it is dark, and then I...glue a small squirrel on it. To Brian F., for all the fun arguments we've had, and for teaching me about math. I give you credit, that story you wrote about the woman who killed her husband was really good. No comment on the others. "The man died, okay!" He's thrilling! (Just kidding!) Thanks for being a great friend. I can still sing soprano, listen...To Viet, for always making fun of the teachers and making me laugh (Noven to Five). To Alan and Jason, for the ping-pong, tennis, Trump, and frisbee games, and for all the fun times we've had sitting around thinking of something to do. To Rich C., for putting up with me in middle school, and not holding a grudge! I hope you become the most famous meteorologist ever, even bigger than Flip Spiceland! I'd watch you. Thanks for taking me to the Red Sox-Yankees game (didn't Boston win 21-0?) and for all the other great times we had. We'll keep in touch. Alex, hello?, jerr?, thanks for not being a jerr, for the great frisbee games, for Jor's Furniture's MOM!!!! For the great car rides in your wonderful car (I'm sorry to say your upgrade isn't the best of an improvement), and for being one of my best friends over the last however many years. To ROSTER, for being the Roster, for making great albums (real and fictional), for your wonderful cartoons, for the great football game in your backyard, for Sly, for chasing me with a Polar Springs water container, for showing me the Puritan way of living, and for being one of my best friends for a long time. To Mike E., for the terrific frisbee games under the lights, for introducing me to great music (not the Beastie Boys), for MOM!!!! and Spooky World, for the arguments at 4 AM (in retrospect), for loving chamber orchestra (you were a great coach), for lending me some great comics (Superman will be back), for all the good times, and for being the best friend anyone could ask for. I hope you become a great teacher. To Mrs. Deardorff for the tennis team for four great years. To all the teachers that I've had who made those four years challenging. And, of course, to Mr. Ullmann. To all those I've mentioned, my high school years have left me with wonderful memories that I will cherish for the rest of my life. These memories are due entirely to all of you, and for that I thank you.

Future Goals: To find a job that makes me happy, to settle down with a nice family, to continue playing the piano, and to keep in touch with some of my high school friends.

Thanks to: First of all, I would like to thank T-BONE because without him my life wouldn't be possible. Then thank Almighty God, because without him there would be nothing. My parents for giving me the seed of life, nurturing it to the ripe age of 18. Now comes my dogs. To my boyz in Beantown, what's up K-Dog, Erb, J-Brown, J.C. and Darrell. Now for the Hanscom Dogs! Mark-Dog for being a dog in the weight room with you know who, you went out like a real dog. "Roff, Poff!" What's up to the boyz who always on the nuts. Brendon stop swinging before you get cut. Marcell, stop dating my sister just so you could come over and see me. Also, what up to the Martin Lawrence Boyz, Midgett, the goofiest bit. I now keep that stomach. Farmer, start eating your vitamins and live up to your last name, Boyee. Now for the freaks, what up Angela W. you know who's in charge when I'm on the phone. Rea, you know I'm going to get some this summer. Jaqui, drop that attitude and get with super fly T. Jo, you can never have more "G" than me. Gladys, time to get dissed, no sir I've been doing enough of that this year, Calm down Bitty! Short-stuff start coming to school so I can see you more. Barbara, also known as pusshead, stay fresh in 93. Angela H. get rid of that high voice. Adelle, I'm letting you run things now. Nicki B. next time try to go longer, no sir, you did fine. Aparna, keep giving kisses. To the White guys: Boffa, stop swallowing nuts. Lord, the coolest Bedford kid I know, stay out of touch, no sir. "Dude, like man ol pal." I'm going to close just as I opened, thanks T-BONE. PEACE-OUT Bedford!

Future Goals: Go to college and get the grades I want to get. Have crazy fun and just chill with the girls. And have the fly's car and always dress to impress.

Thanks To: When I came to this school in my sophomore year, I didn't know what to expect. In the three years that I have been here, I've learned a lot about myself. It's been a rocky road. I've had some great times and some not so great times, but this isn't the time to focus on the bad. This should be a celebration of my high school years and a time to thank the most important people in my life, my family. No one has meant more to me than my family. To my mom who has always loved me through the good times and the bad times. never have you given up on me. You always accepted me for me. I don't know how you do it. You always loved me, and I'll always love you. To my dad, for not only being my father, but also a friend. You always were there for me. I could always count on you to be at my games. No matter how busy you were, you always made time for me. You always make me laugh, and no matter what we do together, we always have fun. You and my mom both spoiled me. I'm not complaining, but you not only spoiled me with possessions, but you spoiled me with love. I can't think of two better parents in the world than you two. Some times I take for granted how lucky I am because some kids only have two parents, but I have four parents who all mean a lot to me. To Neal, you're the greatest stepfather a kid could have. I know that I've told you that a lot, but it's because I truly mean it. I don't know how you and my mom are going to survive with me not there. Things will definitely be different around the Katz and Gore households next year. To Rhonda, my step-mother-to-be, I'd like to thank you for always supporting me in whatever I do because you never had to - I'm not your child, but you've always treated me like I was. Whenever I have a game or an event, I know that you'll always be there, and because I'm not your son, that makes it even extra special. My dad's going to have a great wife, and I'm going to have a great stepmother. To my brother Dave, we've had our ups and downs, but through it all, I've always loved you. I'm real proud of you. You've accomplished a lot through hard work, and I hope that as we get older, we become closer. To my best friend, Bobby Clapp, you've not only been my best friend, but you've always remained loyal. We never went to the same school, but it didn't matter because we were always there for each other. To Dave Boffa, when I went to private school, our friendship wasn't as strong as it was before. I know that, but I've always considered you a friend. I remember when we were younger, we used to talk about what we wanted to be in life, what colleges we wanted to go to. Well, here we are. We made it. I wish you success in whatever you do. Hopefully, both of us will realize our goals and be rich and famous. Let's keep in touch. To Geoff Chase, we've been going to school together or our whole life. I remember you giving me tuna fish sandwiches in the third grade, Mrs. Milldrum's class. Then in the 8th grade, when we went to Maine together. Boy, was I a stud in Maine. Remember all those girls Geoff? Well we've had some great times. I thank you for always being my friend, even when I didn't think I had any. Geoff and Boffa, thanks for getting me a ride to the semi-formal junior year. That was the nicest thing someone's done for me, and I really mean that. Geoff, I wish you the best of luck in whatever you do, and I hope we keep in touch. Very important thanks to Uncle Army for if it wasn't for you, I don't know where I'd be right now. Words can't describe how much you've meant to me. You are truly the greatest, and one day I'll look back and laugh. To Joe and Kathy of Salon. Elegante Joe you've been cutting my hair since I was a baby. My hair always looked great because of you and Kathy. Last, but not least, Carey G., my next door neighbors and good friend. We've had a lot of memories. I hope that when you get to be a senior, you'll be as cool as me! It will be tough, Corey, but as the immortal Billy Katz once said, "Anything's possible."

Future Goals: To be rich and famous, but most importantly, to be happy.

Thanks To: Todd A. for his seatbelts, Jared Carlson, because white men can jump, Brill. Steve Clark and his hair, Cohen, for being just like Bobrinitz, only cheesier. C. Demby, Cooter - the toughest gang member I know, Drohan, Teri Franks - for Ed, John Woolard - for making Lolapalooza a good night, Sadowski - for playing a little too much Atari, Sergio for eating lugnuts, Mr. Lewis - for parking the car over there, McInnis for never owning a good car, Mara, Chris Merrill for being Cool as Ice, Maddox, Bobrinitz and Randall Corey, All the girls who pick their teeth and won't shut their mouths, Les, Eric, Tobey, and Chuck for always going strong, Herman Rice, the best running back of all time, Coach Mulligan and Kilpatrick for the best freshman team ever. Pete, for salting my foods, Coach Sullivan for showing us what the shed is all about, Hirsh and Petrillo for loving good hits, Colonel Campbell for the jokes and for coaching Lax, and Coach Sabourin for trusting in me. Also, all of the people I've ever played football with and don't have the space to mention them. Smulski, J.T., Farmer, Midgett, Gallant - for being the best manager, Brendon for his pool, spacemobile, and mohawk. What is she dribbling? Jason Setters, Viet Lee, Rich Atkinson, Matt Wilson, Pat Lewis, and Gary Glitter, Keoni Monte, Out of my way - BEEP! BEEP!, Vin Welch for showing me how to edit, and for yelling at H. Rice when he was cutting down trees in my backyard, Mike Boutin, for having a good knee, Colin Ross, for scoring touchdowns and letting us rag on you Teri Ciccone, for Braintree and DCL, player of the week, John Ginn - for never letting anything score and being the hardest hitter I've ever seen, Clup Mofield - for knowing every word to every Van Halen song and being the sloppiest, unsexiest kid I know. Chow-Chow and Merlin, thanks for killing animals and bringing them in the house. Grandma, thanks for all the sports pages, Russ and Liz, for being the best brother and sister I could ask for, Mom - you've done so much for me, I don't think I could ever thank you for it, and Dad, you are the strongest person I know, and you have always been there and supported me. You have shown me what true love is, and I will someday hope to do the same for my kids. Also, to anyone else I have forgotten, sorry I didn't put you in.

Future Goals: To play football in college and do a sack dance on ESPN. To make it big, get fast cars and big trucks and take a buggy through the sippi hole. To figure out how to talk to an angel and jam with Van Halen. Maybe someday I'll be able to find some blood, get a beautiful wife and settle down, but until then I am going to party with Roni, his seven fingers, and anyone else who wants to rock.

And thanks to all the girls: Katy for watching me almost fall to my death, Caroline and Katy for giving me such a unique nickname of "tree" and giving me compliments, Mandy for bieng the only other real Greek and not being ashamed of it. Terri for the Junior Prom, Berko for letting us use your T.V. and art class, Kristen, Michelle, and Ashley, Sarah Ro, and Mary Mix for many childhood memories, Tony J., Ginn, Paul S., Shay, Jen Hansen, Jen Hanson, Teri, Colin, Keoni, J.D., Brendan M., Mike McAllister, Michele Cronin, and Amrith (Back in my country Sri Lanka) thanks for sharing a lot of good times with me and all the everyone these last couple of years. All my sister's friends - Karen, Kelly, Kerry, Aniko, Nat (hiding in the hemlocks) Dan(uri), Dave Tobey, D'jarum Tech Drafting, Steve Craig (mountain biking), I can see what my sister sees in you guys. I'd also like to thank my guitar teacher Jay for teaching me all about guitars and Duke Ellington and for being able to take any piece of music and make it sound like it should be in an elevator, Juan Epstein for being the only Puerto Rican Jewish person I know. Grand Master Flash, Matt Brown, U2 for playing the best show I've ever seen (so I saw it twice). Tom Petty, Arise ?Putz from Sigma Chi, Mike my SAT tutor, Daddy Freddy, Darryl Strawberry, Gonzo, Disney World, Addie Finny, Jay (mole) from Arlex, Fred Garber, Pepe Torres, Beate Bailey for lending me his hat; and all the great times I've had over the years, Breakin 93, U2 Concert (twice) Ron Jon Yaga Rootz, using my water halloon launcher to launch tuna fish, oranges, eggs, grapefruit, etc. Pumpkin/sign stealing, Sunday River, Youth group ski trip, and ultimate frisbee. I'd also like to thank all my art teachers over the years: Mrs. Frazier "O.K., who put the razor blades in my coffee again?", Mrs. Gaposkin, Mr. Pillahead, Mrs. Alcarez, and especially Mr. Barron for getting my portfolio in shape and for all those many talks about art and colleges. I really feel that you have helped me greatly.

Future Goals: I plan to go to college, find out the meaning of "y Manana otra casa (menterosa)" and what actually is in the "RR" burger at Roy Rogers, then move to Greece, my native land and live up in a tree with my Les Paul guitar, clean underwear, and a beautiful Greek girl (maybe Seka) where we'll breed 100% Greek children until every kid can thank a real Greek person in their "thanks to" section of their yearbook.

Thanks To: First and foremost, I'd like to thank the Lord for giving me a sound mind and body, the tools to excel in school, athletics, and life. I'd like to thank Mom and Dad, Ellen, Emily, and Kim for their unconditional love. High school has been a great experience, and I hope to carry over the positives of high school on to bigger and better things. One of the positives were my friends, and it is too bad that I will leave them behind for, ultimately, a higher purpose. One person who I will miss is Rich Atkinson. Rich truly defines the word friend. Every superlative imaginable applies to him. Loyal, intelligent, and funny, he is a friend everyone should have. I would like to thank him for being a friend. Rich also knows how to boost your confidence, too. I once won nine straight one-on-one games against him. That's another reason why I'll miss the kid. Now for the rest of the thank yous:

In no particular order, I'd like to thank Matt Wilson for his irrepressible humor (and the sharing of fashion tips), Mike "Espo" Esposito for his ever refreshing intelligence and candor, Teri Ciccone for his trust and loyalty, Dave "The Red Scare" Hursh for going out with Andria Pomponi, Al Pedersen for his wild personality, Meg "Blossom" Boschetto for her incredible endowments, Matt Ross for making fun of Andria Pomponi, Vin Welch for humoring me with in Mr. Stephenson's calculus, Ducky, Dr. Moron for showing me that work is for people who make less money; I'd also like to thank Steve Chester for pointing out Mr. Reynolds napping during a Poli Sci video, Mike Anderson for driving to endanger, Greg Rivinius for nothing, Cindy Hunt for playing dumb in Latin, Frank Welch's arm circles, John Dallas for the child-rearing tips, Jill Freeman for being semper fidelis, Alex Brill for just being Brill, Mr. Corliss for showing how unsuccessful a business teacher can be, Chip Mofield for all my football injuries, Cait Hurley for her amazing athleticism, Katy Doherty for giving me something to look at in Law, Shawn Sadowski for everything in Health, Misty Ullom for laughing for absolutely no reason, Mark Likowsky for his unflattering impressions of Mrs. Sorgi collecting field trip money ("dough-dough") and reciting field trip dates ("November 5"), Mrs. Sorgi, Erin Sparks for giving me a hand Jason Campoli, the New York Crew esp. Jimmy Davis who made me wonder why he didn't play varsity basketball, for the love of Deion, a special thanks goes to Dave "White but Proud" Boffa. I'd like to thank some teachers now, beginning with Coach Sabourin, who instilled me with a discipline and work ethic that will help me later on. Mr. Maxwell for his friendship, Mr. Stephenson for the Lite approach to math (Don't drink and derive), Mr. Reynolds for his intelligence and political astuteness (I will forever remember our class discussions on the Gulf War), Mr. Spinosa for allowing me to express my rather bold opinions, Mr. Sullivan for allowing me to relax before practice, Ms. Mitchell, Mr. McCarthy, Mr. O'Malley, Mr. Kelly, Mr. Hunt, and Mr. Pilla. Athletics has been a huge part of my life and will continue to be. I am proud to have represented BHS, and I will forever have memories of everything in my high school athletic career. I'd like to thank everybody associated with football, track and tennis, the coaches, Coach Sab, Coach Campbell, Coach Daugherty, and Coach Deerdorf, the players of all the teams - each team was a family and every single person on every team was a brother to me; and Pete Cacciola, who kept me and hundreds of others in one piece and functioning. Best of luck to Matt Giusti and Adam Smith, to whom I hand over the mantle of leadership in track and tennis respectively. I wish the best to above mentioned people and if I forgot to mention you or if you weren't mentioned I still wish the best for you.

Future Goals: Coach Sabourin has instilled within me confidence and belief in my abilities, and both Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Spinosa, through their excellent history classes have shown me what it takes to be great and the importance of serving your country and the public. All three men have convinced me that my best years lie ahead, that I have a chance at greatness, and that I will serve my country and the American people to the best of my ability in whatever capacity I choose. I am confident I can live up to my own expectations and those of the people who know me. On to college!

Thanks to: Most importantly my family, to my sister Beth, Sue and Lisa. You three have given me a lot of support and thanks for putting up with all my loud music. To my dad, You're the leader of our family now and you're doing a great job. Keep it up! VERY SPECIAL THANKS to my mother for teaching me all of her morals and for giving me the foundation on which my life is based. Mom, thanks for all you did. You were the best. Your spirit lives in us all. I love you!! Thanks to Linda Gunn. You've helped our family so much. I really appreciate all that you have done. Thanks to Ace for all the good times over the past 3 years (the parties, the talks, the support) and for being a schema with me. We never got caught doing anything (Middle School parking lot, Funworld, 4 parties between us) WOW! Thanks to Boffa for being a great friend and driving golf balls with me at the V.A. I'll always remember your house at the Cape last summer. Ginn, the rape victim, for all the Memorial Day Weekends, the vacations, (Sarnset - Krista and Kris - Perrish Hill), and for always wanting a short chick. Alpo for being a great kid and never yukkin' on anybody's driveway. Nutes, your impersonations are a riot. Always remember McInnis at the Cape with a strainer on his head saying, "She's got a cute smile." Colin for all the great times and for taking a bath in a swimming pool in broad daylight. You'll always be a Caveman. Kyvelos (Greek) for the tires and all the crazy outfits at our parties. McInnis, what can I say? You'll always be the second coming of Sal Rosenberg; "Hello, Barbara?" Roni (Chip) for teaching me how to dance and do the "spin move." Thanks to Lord and the McGarry for all the nights at the mountains and islands. How many stogies and packs of Djarum have you guys consumed? Thanks to Ciccone for caddying and having a house on the Cape so close to mine. That made it so fun. Thanks to Todd for being the man and taking the blame at Funworld. Thanks to Josh and Adam for being heebies and friends since the very first grade. Remember pumpkin smashing and the golf course greens? Thanks to Matty for having one of the best nights of the '92 summer with me, B.T., and Cohen over at Keri McGrath's house. Thanks to Stone for having a VW bug, Wakeham (Cisco), and to Keoni for being a moose. Actually make that 2 moose. Chester—"How's Ronnie?", small melons on that chick. Thanks to Boutie for being the Buca-man and making fun of Ullman. "Hello, I ordered an eggplant sub." Thanks to B.T. for caddying with me and the call at 3:45 in the morning when I was busy. Thanks to Danny for being a great kid. Remember the cat in your car? Thanks to some in the Class of '94—Merrill, Barden, Cal (walking orgasm), and Mika. (Thanks for the sneak peek at the beach. How's the sand?); to some in the Class of '95—Tim (the parties) and Guisti for having a sweet looking chick. Thanks to all the girls: Berko for the parties, Valentine; Colliton for singing late night at Berko's parties; and Paula for never scoopin' Lord or three guys in one night. Katy for all the talks and wild times. We've had so many good times. Thanks for being such a good friend. Thanks to Caroline for never being late and for all the secluded parties we went to, Ashley and Terri—what can I say to you two besides I never got sick of you and you're the balls. Jen Hansen for being a great friend through junior high. Mandy for listening to my Sal Rosenberg imitations and to Jen Hanson—remember Tim's? I bet you don't. Thanks to Shay for all the Phil stories. There were so many good ones. Krista, special thanks to you because you made me realize what type of person I am. You always provided me with the support I needed. Thanks so much! To all my teachers, coaches, and admirers. Good luck in the future. Lastly, thanks to the crazy soccer teams and Mr. Wilson. I'll always remember the games against Georgetown, Concord, A-B, and L-S. Good luck in the years to come. The '90 J.V. team—always remember Coach K, getting his butt kicked over at CC.

Future Goals: To go to college and do well enough to graduate on time. Then to get married to a very beautiful woman and have kids that will be raised just the way my mother raised me. To see the girls in our class be on time for graduation. To see Ace become a Bedford cop and to never get bagged by him when I come back to visit. To see

Ginn marry a short chick and see Chip marry a fat chick. And to sell my car and buy a Blazer.

Thanks to: Alpo, the worst houseguest I ever invited back. Anderson, Dirty trips to Jack's Junkyard. Boutin, a loyal member of the white water cooler crew. Brill, THE man since first grade. Carlson and his bear necessities. Cha for being the hardest man to beat in Laser Tag and always smoking stogies while playing poker. Chester, for appreciating Chubb Rock. Ciccone, for being a close friend every year since the days when we shot G.I. Joe's head with a b.b. gun, and also thanks to Teri for being the first to test my space trolley. Thanks to Cohen for his steak tip and for bringing the word "kid" to another level. Esposito for never being able to keep a straight face. Ginn, for being Antonio Tortellini and "no me pruebas." Hursh, Redfield and "Plumber Mam." Kyvelos for the voice behind "Jim" and "pat there?" Kleekamp for "what happens when that happens." Lord for being the sweetest "G know, and for lobster. Mara for being a great friend with a lot of determination and most importantly for S. Rosenberg. Thanks to McMatt for all the golf memories "Oh Dennis." McMike for his glorious shotmakin' Mofield for starting a dance revolution. Monte, faces death at the lunch table. Rivinius, the MVP of the 1992 avenger hunt. Ross for never clubbing me, MPR for the puritan way." Stone, for conservation land jogs, and for being a close friend since baseball cards and scooping fifth grade. Udell, for being a neighbor (in a sense) and for being a good student in shoe tying. Venuti, "Diga me." Hey Mac D. tom petty, and all your thousands of jokes. You are one of the funniest kids I will ever meet. Thanks to Cooter for making the semi-formal a blast and for just being Cooter. Disco Vin Welch for the miraculous hunt and capture of Jon Holden and for making "The Joads" a ear success. A special thanks to the mad dog who always came and helped me out when I needed a jump. To the underclassmen: Merrill, McGrath, Gallant, McAllister, Lukinger, Reynolds, Hansen, and the underclassmen Dickinson and Little Mike Lobster - You guys all haul, thanks to the whole class of 1993, especially the girls who didn't mention, you are all the best, and you haul. thanks to my family, not including Dave Boffa, who sometimes gets confused as a part of the household. Dave, we have nothing in common except for the search for a good laugh. We've had many. Too many laughs to list on paper. Too few to quit having them. Outside of being the only person who can get me to spit milk at a joke, I like you because you don't try to impress me. You may be the "Prime Time" of HS but to me you are Dave Boffa, and you haul.

Future Goals: To figure out what I want to do with my life, to read a book, to get smarter, probably by going to college, to eat, sleep, and enjoy my job, to stay healthy by golfing a lot, to give my kids the same advantages my parents gave me, to beat Dave Boffa in Black Jack, to beat anybody, including my little sister in ping-pong, find a phase in Lazer Tag, buy more cars that Maddox and trash a car, beat Teri in a race at Tuckerman's ravine, giving him a head start, buy another cadillac, buy another Saab, to bench press John Ginn himself, and to be on SNL. Finally, to win a major PGA event, fix my hair a la Dave Boffa, take the cash and build a golf course and let all my high school friends play for free, or just use the pub for a night.

Gregg Rivinius for almost running me over, the supersoaker 2000 raids, and hanging out with me at track. Mark McInnis, Dave Boffa, and Dave Venuti for being real funny guys and making class more interesting. Amrith for being fun to talk to and for saving me a seat on the bus. Rich Atkinson for being my catch partner and hench buddy. Stephanie D. for being such a gossip and for researching our observation. Krysten Carpenter for calling me a st - oh I already said that. Heather for working for me and being a little Debbie. Craig Wiley for explaining knee surgery to me. Jeff and Chuck for making band a little better. Everyone in Advanced Bio for continuously turning and smiling at me the day after my early exit when I had the ear plugs. Julie and Misty and Rita for being friendly people. Smith for field. Aaron Rashba for being the RASH. Steven Hecta for always spelling my name wrong (got you back). Beverly for -I always have fun! and voices in the hallway. Vin for keeping B. Drohan under control. John Woolard for physics class. Father Sheehan for saying I'm his favorite and looking for out for me and being so kind. Jim McDonnell for making work less tedious and for teasing me about Boston College. Mr. Spinosa, Mr. Sabourin, Mr. McCarthy, and Mrs. Ralston for being great teachers and friends. Mr. McDonald for the band, the music, and all the stuff I learned. Richard Caniglia for being a wonderful person. I wish you hadn't moved. Everyone else I missed, and all of last year's seniors whom I was friends with. I think I just confused people ...

Future Goals: To become a rock musician - a superstar signed to Capitol Records. Backup plan - to go to graduate school and earn a good degree then get a high paying business job. Above all else, to become happily married and have several children, and settle down. To have a positive impact on people I meet - all else, to become happily married and have several children, and settle down. To have a positive impact on people I meet and leave a lasting impression on the world.

Thanks to: Most of all Jason Chisholm. You got me going in this school when I first came here and have been my friend throughout. Thanks a lot man. Also to Jim Mobley, you've been a great friend and have given me a lot: meals, rides, etc... I owe you a lot. Good luck your senior year dude. To football, you guys are great. We are going out with a bang this season. Defensive line is MINT, we WILL do well. Good luck to you guys for your senior year and all the rest of Bedford's years. Thanks coaches for our season and helping us grow as men and athletes. Hi Kim, how are you doing. It's been fun being a few lockers away for two years straight and always chatting to you about something. Thanks to my teachers as well. Now for my mom, you deserve the world and I hope you get it. Chrissie, Keifer, and Dillon hope your future is prosperous and fulfilling. I love you.

Thanks To: All of my friends for giving me memories which I will cherish forever. Cait, thanks for being my first and best friend when I moved to Bedford. Thanks for forcing the boys to let me play kickball, it meant a lot to me. Miss Peel was right! How could she have known? Mary, thanks for being the social organizer of "the group"...and for having a pool! Steph, thanks for your countless physics and teledmedia pointers and for our Oscar-deserving French video. Thanks Kim (K) for being the only person to ever give me a nickname. Jen, thanks for always laughing at my jokes and reminding everyone of reality. Krystin, thanks for always saying what you think, no matter what. Meg, thank you for being a friend whom I can always confide in...and thanks for about a million rides. Jane C., thanks for being a ping pong queen queen who always smiles. Jill, thanks for your unique perspective on life. Erin, thanks for great lunch table conversations. Jason, thanks for being a man of few words. Thanks Adam, Aaron, and Craig for being teledmedia pros. Thanks Jessica for sticking through Advanced Bio with me. Thanks to the Mrs. Hoyt gang with whom I shared an incredible experience: Alex for listening to all of my problems and forcing me to laugh about them. Mike for giggling uncontrollably at everything Alex says. Mark for Oklahoma and your Saturday Night Live caliber impressions. Thanks to the Marching Band survivors: Gersh for being lovable Gersh, Coates for being his right-hand man, Matt for listening to me complain. Thanks Bev, Jen S., and Debbie for showing that girls can be incredible trumpet players. Thanks Carrie for being so cheery - good luck next year. Thanks Rachael for defying band law and talking to me during the 16 step squares. Brian, thanks for a bizarre love/hate, but always awesome friendship - and for the certs before the semi-formal. Thanks Dave H. for talking so fast and for being a nice guy. Jane A., thanks for loving to sing as much as I do. Mr. Low and Mrs. McInnis, thank you for sharing your talents and for giving me smiles and inspiration. Andrea, thanks for being an incredible editor and friend. Betsy, thanks for all the plays we've been in together, I'll never forget them. Thank you Rita and Julie for having the courage to wear bathing suits on stage and also for being so easy to talk to. Thanks Misty and Irene for being two of the most pleasant people I know. Thanks Anita and Katie McB. for not killing me when I don't write. Finally, thanks to my family for always, always supporting and encouraging me. You've given me more than I could ever possibly give back. Thank you.

Future Goals: To watch Oklahoma sixty years from now with the entire BHS cast. To live life every day with boundless energy and enthusiasm. To fulfill all my dreams and then dream a thousand more.

Thanks To: I would like to thank God for giving me such wonderful parents. If I can be 1/2 as great as you are as parents, I will be pleased. Your guidance and teaching can never be replaced. The sacrifices you make every day are immeasurable. Leah, you are an inspiration of a heroine. Thank you Colonel Campell and Chief Braga for making me a leader. Mr. Sullivan, I appreciate you sparking my interest in law even more than it was. There are many people at Bedford that were special to me, but four friends are unforgettable. Todd Vin, Jill, and Betsy - you have all been my support system. Without you I could never have made it. I love you all. Thank you Jo for being someone I could trust. Thanks to Dave. You will always be the one for me. Thanks to Chuck for all the wonderful times. If anything you haven't made my life dull. I wouldn't change a thing! To everyone else in the Class of 1993: Good luck. I wish all of you success and happiness.

Thanks To: Mark, "Mac Daddy", thanks for the running time in Concord, "raccoon", and thanks for letting me sleep at your house so many times. Dave Boffa, we were kids for a day with the "alewife incident", "prime time", the nights we spent at Mac's were classic. Chester, "siskie the best $20 I ever spent. Junior prom night in the closet Where is the subaru Brat. " Must be cool guy". Al, the beat catcher I've ever seen besides "J. C." New Year was a night to remember "Weekend at Bernies" You can sleep in the back of my truck anytime (Tim's). Dave Venuti, Maine and Varney camps were some good time I need to say it, "You look great in that green machine Matt McGarry (T.P.) We have set records in the middle that Bedford will not soon forget. Good luck in your movie career. Geoff, thanks for surviving my first major accident. Hey Acer, who won, I think the Braves beat the Pirates! Mike, don't go to Zona with Chester, hang around here and be the next Mike Blasi. Teri, the nights we spent with Boffa at Mark's were good times. Lazer tag was great at your house and don't ever forget Halloween. Chip, owe you so much for all the rides that your mom gave me I owe your dad for my quote "We have come a long way since nursery school, huh?" Dave Lord, football was a blast as freshmen and juniors and I hope you had fun as a senior without me. John Mara, you had the potential to be the best baseball player in Bedford but you quit after freshman year. I have missed you on the team. Todd, we have drifted apart and I'm sorry, but we did have some great times (walking home from the base and taking stre signs). I would like to meet again someday, hopefully in better terms. Greek, I have not known you too well for too long but I am definately glad that I got to meet the best tri climber that Bedford has ever seen. Adam(Ud), I have known you since kindergarten and even though you hate me then I am glad that we are really good friends now. Cooter, if you stay out of Lowell then you will make it to college one day. I hope to see you in a movie with Ma some day. Mike Boutin, I have not known you too long but the nights I have spent with you have been a blast. At the split end days were the absolute best even though practice was the worst. Jared, Cam, and Tony you have displayed your superior intelligence by selecting me to be your coach. Sean, you should have stayed in Bedford. Mike Anderson, thanks for beating that nameless freshman. Bill, all I've got to say is that you should never have gone to private school. Thanks to Colin, Ginn, and La for your contributions to the football team. Thanks to the girls of '93. Caroline, you have always been so nice to me and always took a little time to talk to me when I was down. Thank you and don't forget 6th grade. Katy, I am very grateful for the nickname and the song "I call him Pablo". Berko, thanks for all the nights of T.V. at your house. Kristen, first of all "shut up" and if you ever call me "polywog" again, you're dead. Michelle Pavallas, you are so nice to me. Franks, I was your number 1 field hockey fan and you should put a silencer on that laugh. Mandy I am glad I got to know you and your house. Matt Gannan (Hardie) for always wearing Zubas and for being a great 3rd baseman. Wayne, I'm pulling for you and I hope you pitch well your senior year. Chris Merrill, my volleyball partner. We were "Kings of the beach." Brenden, I am waiting to see you become the next Colin Ross. Sara Epler, thanks for dropping analysis and leaving me all alone. Ro, I am a better person for knowing you and I hope you find your man in tan pants. Maybe I will let you get your stick one day (Speedy). Special thanks to Fat Albert and friends (Boys of '95 you know). Michelle you have been very special to me, thank you. The Crew (Caroline, Jen, Danielle, Courtney, and others) I am glad I met you and spent some classic times with you. Caroline you have the nicest closets. Eileen (D.O.C.) thanks for letting me beat you in basketball. Carla and Kelley, the class vandals, if you ever touch my bleachers again I will hunt you down. I'd like to thank Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Sabourin, and Mr. Reynolds the best coaches I have ever had. Mr. Maxwell for being the nicest teacher I never had. Tim French for the talks and trading. Mrs. McInnis for being like a second mother and helping me anytime I needed it. Last but not least, my family. Mom and Dad thanks for your love and support in sports and school it means a lot to me. Kelley, Buddy, and Joey for always being the first ones to offer me help when I needed it. Chuck and Cheryl thanks for selecting me to be the godfather of your daughter, Samantha. I will always love all of you.

Future Goals: Go to college, play baseball, Graduate and then if there is time, I would like to take over Tom Wu's seminar, sky dive into a giant pile of whipped cream wearing only silk boxers, marry a girl named Yolanda and raise a family on a farm in Idaho.

Thanks To: Every single person who has laughed at my jokes; if it wasn't for you people I don't know where I would be today. Thanks for the best group of friends anybody could ever ask for. I will never forget the great times we've had together! Boff, we have a lot of great memories (3rd grade, "the regulator's," "D3," "steam dogs," "Nir Fart Dir," oatmeal raisin crisp) you could always make me laugh. You were the first friend I ever had, and I learned a great deal from you. Thanks for being a great friend. Mike and Matt, you guys are like brothers to me, I feel we will still be close fifty years from now. I will always remember the times at Rockport (Deano, surfing, the firecracker incident, "I can't hear!"), the Baseball teams, and the Beverly Burger King. Also the mornings before school and the downstairs football and basketball games at your house. You guys are great friends and thanks for everything. Alpo, what can I say? All those nights you slept over my house and the endless "What would you do it...?" topics. The baseball rivalries, I guess you won them all. Oh, yeah, "My twelve year old brother swallowed a quarter!" Also Jack B., Uncle Dave, "That's my wife!", Fla., Jason, Manny, Winn Dixie! We always had fun times together, with a little fighting in between. Greek, we finally saw him! Bueno! If I ever wanted to do something crazy, I knew I could count on you, (I dare you to climb that tree! Phillies Blunt, "Now, Matt!"). I'm glad we became good friends, you're a great kid. McInnis, I don't know we shared the best experience any hunter could ever share, we got the big one! You're one kid I could trust and tell almost anything to. You're definitely a better golfer than me, but I don't know about a better President. Thanks for all the sleepovers, and the whiffleball tournaments (O.K., it was fair!), also for the school play (Yes, it was fun, "Pepto B.", "Mark McInnis, nice butt!") You're a great friend. Todd, I'll never forget the "glory days," of playing whiffleball at your house, and riding bikes. We always could have a straightforward conversation. Geoff and Lord, you guys were the definite parties whenever I wanted a "good time," you two were always there. Thanks for controlling the babe situation. Ace, and also telling me the inside scoop. Lord, thanks for being yourself; you made me do some things that I don't think I would ever do again (O.K. Switch!, "Come on, Venuti, I did it!") Johnny M., thanks for having me down the Cape; Memorial Day weekend, and Lobster weekend. We had a lot of great times together (Hey, Guys, guess what I bought?) Also, thanks, to Chester for being Chester and also being the most unique kid I've ever met. Stone, you definitely deserve to play college baseball; John G., for teaching me the ropes on how to scoop a chick; Teri C., for giving me a chance to be down with the boys in physics class; Colin R., for being high on himself; Rob. W., for being from Lowell; Matty Gallant, we are definitely coming back twenty years from now and coaching Bedford to a State Tourney Title! Also, Rosina, for being a great friend, we have a lot of great memories, too many to list— (It was a hot summer night...); Eppler, I'm glad we became good friends, you're a great kid; Berko, for being my Prom date; Sister D., we've been friends a long time and I will still be waiting for that night; Caroline, you would always speak the truth, thanks for being a good friend; Mandy, for always being free; Teri, for being my semi-formal date; Ashley, for proving me wrong; Kristen, for always disagreeing with me; Michelle P., for being the playgirl; Jen H., for being a friend for twelve years (O.K., you are older than me); Cyndi H., Jessy, and Mika, for always laughing at my jokes. But most especially, Beth, I'm glad things worked out between us; you mean so much to me, I love you, baby (betcha ten bucks!) Also, thanks to the BF crew, especially Suzanne, thanks for everything and making those runs for me, Sully FTP man, and also the Doctor. Also thanks to the MC Jim, R.J., and Mary. Erin, thanks for always straightening me out. Even thanks to my sister's friends, you girls are great. Especially thanks to Mr. Tompkins, you've taught me a lot; also to the whole McGarry family for being my second family—thanks for everything; also Grandma, for cooking those big meals for me and my friends. Most of all, thanks to my family, especially Cool Paps, for being my best friend and always wanting the best for me—you've taught me so much and most of all to be persistent. Also, my mother, for always making me work hard and also getting up early and doing my laundry and making my lunch (Yes, I did my homework.) Scott, I'm glad we're so close and thanks for the great weekends at Merrimack. Brother Nick, you're the greatest. Becky, for always putting up with me, hopefully, I taught you well. And last, but not least, my favorite family member, my dog Rusty.

Future Goals: To somehow get into the U.S. Naval Academy, become a Naval Officer. Join the Naval Intelligence and find out who really shot J.F.K. Get married to a wonderful wife, have three or four kids and a dog named Sam. Also, keep in touch with the best group of friends anyone could ever have. Good luck!

Thanks To: Mom and Dad for staying on me during my four years of high school. Y'all have always been there to help. Y'all are the best parents I could ask for; without y'all I would have never made it. Thanks and I love y'all very much. Belinda, you're a pain sometimes, but you're the best sister I could ask for. Don't ever change - love you. My baby brother, Jason, stop being a bully. You're the best tennis head. Love ya. David, I wish you were here more often. Even though you weren't here for my junior and senior years, you've still kept me going. Thanks, love ya. Jason Garrison, the boyfriend I could only dream about having, now my dreams have come true with you. You are my everything. I don't ever want to lose you. You have put up with me for a year and a half and got me through my senior year. I love you more than anything in the world. Tamia Robinson, you are the best friend everyone wants to have. Don't ever change. We've had our time of fun and we've had our fight, but in the end we came out still best friends. Thanks for helping me out during this year. I hope you and Boh stay together for a long while 'cause you deserve it. I love you b.f.f. You are my sunshine, my only sunshine, you make me happy. I love you B.F.F. Take care. Angie, you are a great friend to be around. You always make me laugh. Good luck in what you do with your life. You're the best. Love ya. Bob Hildreth, for always being there and helping me out with my problems with Jay. You're a good listener. Good luck with Tarnia. You'll never find another girl like her. Mike Zwally, for being there to help me get adjusted to Hanscom. I will never forget you. Good luck with Marecy. You deserve it. Have fun. Let's keep partying. Love y'all. Y'all are the best. Thanks to Connie, Erin Trisha, Mike D. and to everyone I left out. Thanks to my teachers, Chief, Colonel, and Mrs. Mitchell and Nacey Freed. You guys are the best teachers a student could ask for. Thanks.

Thanks to: I can't say enough to my family for providing me with the guidance and support needed to surpass many obstacles that have been placed before me. Thank you for your convictions and the understanding of my needs and allowing me to discover who I am and what my goals are. You have escalated my emotional intensity, unsurpassed heights and the ability to more fully enjoy the simplicity of life and my surroundings. I am eternal.

grateful for all you have done and hope to repay you for your humble actions. Mom, thank you for being the submissive and humble person you are and for teaching me to echo your actions. you ave taught me too much, probably because I have lived with you all my life. You have instilled in me a sense of oneness and peace at heart, and the power of the mind and what we are capable of accomplishing through rationalizing. I can only write a very minute portion of my gratitude toward you and you. I know, can understand what a vital role you play in my life. If you don't, you do now, I LOVE YOU MOM!!!! Dad - Thank you for being my inspiration and my professor of life. You have given me my sense of ethics and leadership through your everyday actions. I have learned so much by your experiences and the power you take charge with and how it can all be done with compassion for others. I can't express the feelings and love I have toward you and all you have done. You have been waiting for me with open arms and always eager to talk with me and express your feelings along with mine. I wish that I was very articulate, so that I might be able to express the gratitude I have for all you have done - Thank four DAD - I LOVE YOU!!!! Your support has been unsurpassed. Laura - My love (actually my sister) thanks so much for letting me be your little brother. Thanks for helping me see life through a different perspective and teaching me from your encounters. Through your experience and drive I have seen a great deal of this echoed in my life and I owe you. We have been together for all of my life and part of yours and you have sculpted all of my life and part of yours and you have sculpted by being more than the obvious. Thank you for always being there and helping me with my daily struggles. Thanks for teaching me about the older society and the do's and don't's of the ethical world. Thank you for your instruction in humanity and what it feels like to be with obstacles in your path and then showing how to overcome them. Thank you isn't enough - I just wish I had been there more for you as you were for me - I LOVE YOU MORE THAN I CAN EXPRESS. Ken (Opey) you are such the inspiration in my life and I hardly know where to begin. Every time I need you you have been there without hesitation - We have been able to spend many great times together and you have shown me how much of a true friend you are by speaking your mind and enlightening me with your wit. You have guided me through my trials and tribulations and allowed me to assist in the same. Were you not there for me, I would probably have ded or something, how much I appreciate all that you have done. Your maturity and wisdom have aided me in so many situations and your humor has taken me from the bottom to the zenith. I want to thank you for letting me live with you and your family and helping me with my finances. Ken, you have shown me more of the simple pleasures than I could have ever seen by myself and the submissive heart you have has made me take a better look at myself. Honestly, I can't thank you enough and there aren't enough pages in the yearbook to express the closeness and adoration I feel towards you and your presence in my life. Thanks so much - I LOVE BUD. To my other parents and family in Maine: Betty, Jerry, Wayne, and James - you have the best second family away from home that anyone could hope for and I am eternally grateful. Thanks for teaching me from your experiences and knowledge, without this help I would be another face in the crowd. Betty (Mom II) thanks for taking me into your home and making me part of the family. With your loving, compassionate, and submissive nature I have grown to be a much more thankful and compassionate person myself. Your sense of ethics has guided me through my problems and you have taken care and been there for me everytime I have needed to come home. Jerry (Dad II) thanks for everything! One, for putting up with me and allowing me to enter your family. You have displayed to me your deep convictions and intensity on life and all that is incorporated into it. You've taught me to stand up for my beliefs and not to allow the norm to penetrate through my veins. I thank you for letting me be your friend and son and treating me with respect. Your actions have displayed the most to me and I cannot tell you all that you have done for me. Thanks for being a dad and letting me show up without notice and spend great quality time with the family. I love ya dad! Wayne and James (Bro!) - Well guys thanks so much for letting me have two brothers I never had, and for letting me pick on you all the time. You may not know it, but you have displayed a great deal of maturity by allowing me to enter your family and take on the responsibilities that follow. Thanks for your caring nature and eagerness to help me and show compassion when it was needed. Jim Davis (Jimmy "Jan" Davis) - Well "drinking buddy" this is it - I don't know where to start - but you have helped me in so many ways its unimaginable. The intense humor you have shown me has got me into a great deal of trouble, but it always helps. Thanks for being there for me whenever and wherever I needed you. You've been around for a long time and the impact you have placed on my life wild. Thanks for taking me to Chelmsford (HA HA) Thank you for going out into the depths of society with me and dictating your views and concerns. You have instilled in me a sense of care and gratefulness for my surrounding and the opposing side of the picture. Thanks for Taco Bell and the great times on the base - Were it not for your humor and your wit (which your bundle up) I would be merely adequate. Thanks so much - I wish that I could repay you - Thanks "number 73" - "I don't know if I can do that right now." To Barry T. Low - for being the greatest music director anyone could hope for. Well "B", thanks you so very much for putting up with me and the bass section at school, and not giving up on us when we were a bit obstreperous. Thanks for teaching the art of the voice and the responsibilities that come with it. You have been an incredible friend and have taught me even more about life and about individuals in general. Throughout the past four years you have helped me to see who I am and what my goals are and could be. You have even helped me to achieve a number of them. If I could express how important your friendship is to me, I would, sincerely! I thank you for so much, more than you probably can even guess why, but you have helped to mold me into who I am. I am forever in your debt. Thank you - say hi to Jessica for me - thank you Mr. Low. Mr. Barbas - Thank you Steve for everything, you have been there for me whenever I have needed guidance and around even when I didn't. I thank you for your friendship and the morals you have so diligently attempted to install. Your wisdom and compassion have helped me through my struggles and have taken me to new heights. Thank you for being my friend and simple for being there. Chris Miller for always being there for me and making me laugh. You have been an excellent friend. Thanks for being there. Mr. Maxwell for showing me how important friendships are and how caring people can be. Thank you for treating me as an equal and not simply as a student - thank you for showing your interests in my well-being and in my life. You have been my inspiration throughout my years here in Bedford and have broken the misconception of student/teacher relations. I thank you for being there and being a friend. Harry Anderson for teaching me the beauty of theatre and the art of life. I thank you for taking me in as a student and friend. I have enjoyed working by your side. Jeremy Witt for being a great friend and for being there with extra help when I needed it. Thanks for everything. Matt Wilson (Wrench) for being my counselor on pick-up lines and my alternative bud at school. Thanks for being there for me. Shawn Sadowski - for being a good friend for the last five or so years. We've been through a lot and the "Bomb Boys" stay together. Thanks for all of your help. Gregg R. - for being a pan and a good friend since the beginning. I appreciate your humor and help in all of our classes. Thanks again for all the good times. Jo Almadovar - for staying with the base kids and being such a good friend for so long. I love you and cannot tell you how much I appreciate all that you have done. Adam Chiocca - for letting me be your advisor and friend. You have been a great friend and have taught me a lot. Your eagerness to learn and humility have made me take a look at myself. Thanks so much. Chris Carson - for being my little brother and for standing up for your beliefs. Your talents have reflected your personality as well and I thank you for all you have done. Lino - Thanks for calling yourself "Lino." You have been an excellent inspiration and I am eternally grateful for your friendship. Tony Johnson for being a great friend and a basketball companion. We have had a lot of great times. Thanks for sticking with it. Heath Dill - for being a great inspiration and assistance throughout the last few years. Thanks for all of the great times. Craig Wiley for being a mediator and a great friend. Thanks for all the advice. Mike LaValley, Brenda, Mike Z., Shamus, and Shawn - for being true friends and never being too busy to listen or spend time with me. You are great friend and your compassion will take you far. Patty L. for being there since seventh grade and for listening when I needed to talk. Thanks for your support and your friendship. Rachel Tobin - for being my favorite alternative buddy and for all the great times we've had. I appreciate your friendship and all that you've done. Betsy C. - for putting an emphasis on your friendships and showing me that you care. Thank you for all of your help and for being there when I wanted you to listen. Anrist G. - for being a great friend and for showing me the art of basketball. (Phsa!) - Thanks for making me laugh and for telling me of life across the globe. Mrs. Dowling and Mrs. Piantadosi - for always showing that you care and for always being eager to discuss any issue that might be on my mind. Your willingness and compassion have made me view you more as friends than as some authoritative figures. Thank you both for showing that you care. Paul Stone - for always being a true friend and always being willing to talk and show you care - Thanks again. Dave Boffa - for always being a great friend and not being a part of the norm - thanks for showing you care. Darrell Russell - for always showing compassion and kindness - you have helped me so much - Love ya D! Kim Sands - for all of the great times we spent together (and with WiGG). You have displayed to me your compassion towards people and the love you have for life - thank you for allowing me to be a part of it. Mrs. McInnis - for teaching me all that I wasn't taught previously about music and how to properly use my voice. I thank you for your flexibility and the love you have shown me. Mark McInnis - for being a great friend and teaching be what you know. Thanks for all the great times we had during the musical. Sarah Higham - Thanks for all the great times we used to have and the beauty in life that you helped me to see. Love ya and thanks. Future goals: To attend college, get my Ph.D. in Marine Biology and take over as head researcher at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute. Also to sign with the King's Singers, get married and have kids, live happily and die the same.

Community Support

The 1993 Bedford High School yearbook staff would like to extend a simple thank you to all of the businesses, community organizations, and parents who supported "Coming Together 1993." Publishing a yearbook is very expensive and selling advertisements helps subsidize the cost.

Without the community's support, students would have been forced to dole out a large amount of money for their high school yearbooks.

The yearbook provides a detailed history of the school year and preserves memories. Students will value their yearbooks for years to come.

Thanks to the yearbook, graduates will never forget the football games, the prom, a favorite teacher, and the good times with friends. The Bedford community can take pride knowing that they helped cement these memories.
